A Long, Fine Day
21 Kinds of Honor
You'll Meet No Gold
Don't Poison Your Marrow

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

Yesterday was one of the year's interesting days, the first day of summer, the longest day in the year, with weather good, throughout the country generally.

Long days or short mean little in these times of daylight saving and reduced working hours, and everything is comparative. The ephemeridae, tiny things that live through one day and die when it ends, probably think they enjoy a long life. To us a year seems long. On the planet Jupiter, where each year is fifty of our years, and a child is five hundred of our years old on its tenth birthday, we should seem like two-legged ephemeridae.

The President and his learned cabinet have gathered in twenty-one degrees, to divide among them, from various institutions of learning. Secretary of State Hull leads with five sets of initials, from Notre Dame, Columbia University, William and Mary, George Washington and Williams University. Secretary of the Interior Ickes came next with four.

If anybody has guaranteed to pay you "in gold," whether for mortgage, rent, or anything else, learn, as your tears trickle, that all that is wiped out. United States District Judge Faris decides that nobody need pay gold, regardless of past agreements since the government has made possession and payment of gold illegal. Hereafter, no matter what anybody has promised, you will have to take payment in such dollars as the United States may turn out. And if you are wise you will prepare yourself for dollars considerably "cheaper."

Also, if wise, you will realize that, in the long run, United States money is about the best thing in the way of money that you can get, even though it should become, as it probably will, a twenty-five cent dollar. The French franc was officially cut down by 80 per cent, which would be equivalent to a twenty cent dollar. German money was made so cheap that it cost about five hundred thousand dollars. German, to send a letter from Berlin to London. You will have cheaper money here.

Important for women and girls that foolishly starve themselves, or swallow "fat-reducing" drugs, to become thin: starving yourself to become thin induces acidosis, much worse, and more easily induced in women than in men.

If you take drugs to get thin, or "relieve pain," you injure the bone marrow and that marrow is the factory in which Nature manufactures the white corpuscles in your blood. Those corpuscles attack disease germs, and protect your health.

All doctors agree on starvation causing acidosis in women.

Even more important, skinniness in women is ugly. Nature, art and beauty demand roundness, well-padded curves.

Barber shops abandoned the NRA code sometime ago. "Tonsorial parlor" in which prosperity reclines with a hot towel on the face, a manicure lady busy with its nails, a bootblack fixing its shoes, and a barber giving it the latest news, is a different institution from that in which plain men are shaved.

Now, the cleaning and dyeing trades abandon their code

Sally Rand Back At Fair Minus Fans

Chicago, June 22 (INS)—Sally Rand, whose fan dance stirred things up at the World's Fair last year, is coming back to a Century of Progress to dance some more —without her fans.

She will appear at the Italian village beginning June 30, it was announced, but nobody seemed to know what the blonde Miss Rand would wear instead of her ostrich fans.

DONNELLY JAILED AS FIXER

Gets 8 to 10 Years on 2 Charges; Appeal Is to Be Filed

John J. Donnelly, 42, of Parsons street, Brighton, today was sentenced to eight to ten years in Charlestown State's prison on two charges of corrupting jurors.

Sentence was given him by Judge David F. Dillon in Suffolk Superior Criminal court after Donnelly had been found guilty by a jury late yesterday.

GUILTY OF FIVE CHARGES

Donnelly was found guilty of five charges, two of obstructing justice, one of conspiracy, and two counts of corrupting jurors.

Because they are only misdemeanors, the first three counts were filed and Donnelly was sentenced on the last two, which are felonies. He was sentenced to four to five years on each, the terms to be served consecutively.

PLEADS FOR FAMILY

Herbert S. Callahan, his attorney, pleaded for leniency and asked for a stay of sentence to file exceptions. He was given until August 4 to do this but Judge Dillon could see no reason for withholding sentence.

Callahan told the judge that a wife and three children dependent on Donnelly's support, and that it might be regarded as a first offender because the only mark on his record was a non-support charge filed by his wife in 1926.

DOYLE WAS PROSECUTOR

"I cannot do that," answered the court. "This is the first time he has been caught, but from the inference I draw, this probably is not his first offense. I must take into consideration the enormity of the offense and the fact that there are no extenuating circumstances."

Assistant District Attorney Frederick T. Doyle was the prosecutor.

Donnelly first came into notoriety as the "missing witness" in the disbarment proceedings against Lowell A. Mayberry in the Supreme Court, in which Mayberry was exonerated.

MAN FALLS INTO PARK ST. PIT

A large crowd in the Park street, under, subway station was thrown into confusion today when William Foley, 50, of Ninth street, East Cambridge, toppled into the pit on the Dorchester-bound tracks. He was pulled out by N. J. Lane, a special Elevated officer, and two bystanders.

Taken to Haymarket Relief Station, Foley was found to be suffering from a severe laceration over the right eye.

The crowd at the station became panic-stricken as Foley fell into the pit, believing it to be a suicide attempt. An east-bound train arrived at the station just after he was removed to the platform.

President Sees 2 Eli Crews Win

By Associated Press

Regatta Course, New Haven, Ct., June 22—The presence of President Roosevelt, riding on the foredeck of the referee's launch, failed to inspire his son and the rest of the oarsmen of his alma mater, Harvard, as Yale swept to decisive victories in the freshman and junior varsity races opening the 72nd regatta this morning.

His son, Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., a stalwart, 180-pound youngster six feet four inches tall, pulled a manful oar, as No. 6, in the Harvard shell, but the Elis won the opening two-mile brush by slightly better than a length in something of an upset.

Then Yale's favored junior varsity, taking the lead at the half-mile mark, rowed steadily away from Harvard's jayvees to win by three full lengths.

The four mile classic between the varsity crews will be held in the cool of the evening, and Yale

'IT'S HOT!' SAYS BAER TO PRIMO

By Associated Press

New York, June 22—A rather diffident comment on the weather was the best wisecrack Max Baer could muster today as he paid a much-publicized visit to Primo Carnera's room in Columbus Hospital where the vast Venetian is resting the ankle bone he chipped in their fight a week ago last night.

"Well boy, here I am," said Carnera as Max and his entourage came bustling into the white walled room and shook hands.

"It's hot," answered Max, brushing moisture from his brow and when Carnera showed no disposition to continue the conversation further Baer repeated:

"It certainly is hot in here."

Carnera, getting the gist of the conversation, finally agreed that it was hot, and a great silence descended.

"How does it feel to be champion?"

"It feels just like it felt to you," Baer answered, and then added: 'I mean it feels natural."

Then he leaned over the bed and the two whispered together for a moment, grinning amiably at each other. Then pictures were taken.

BOSTON CLUE IN 'TRUNK' MYSTERY

Sketch in American Places Poderjay Bride Here

A Boston clue, placing Miss Agnes Tufverson, missing New York attorney and bride, alive and in Boston as late as this month, stunned police of two continents today as they sought to unravel the mystery.

The clue was given Boston police by Mrs. Ruth F. Hall, 26, of 225 Essex street, Melrose, worker in a Winter street cleansing establishment, who identified the missing woman through an artist's sketch in the Boston Evening American.

This sketch, made from a photograph of Miss Tufverson, whose alleged bigamous husband, Captain Ivan Poderjay, is now under arrest in Vienna on suspicion of having slain her, appeared in the Boston Evening American last Wednesday in the Sport Flash-Races edition.

LEFT DRESS TWICE

According to Mrs. Hall, the missing woman attorney who vanished after drawing several thousand dollars from a New York bank, supposedly to go on her honeymoon, was in the Boston cleansing establishment about May 15 and again between June 1 and 10.

She gave the name of Poderjon on both occasions and on both visits left the same dark blue sheer dress to be cleaned and called for it again in three hours.

Police said it was highly significant that the name "Poderjean" could be made of a combination of the first part of Captain Poderjay's name and the last part of the missing attorney's name, Tufverson.

N. Y. POLICE NOTIFIED

Mrs. Hall's information was given to Detectives Joseph Decker and George Augusta of Boston police headquarters and immediately transmitted to Chief Inspector Lewis J. Valentine of the New York police, in charge of the Tufverson investigation in Manhattan.

The Melrose woman said the cleansing shop patron was between 38 and 45 years of age, was well-

CHILDREN WIN 5-CENT FARE

For a nickel, children five years old but not yet 14, will be allowed to ride on the Elevated lines this summer, beginning tomorrow and continuing to Sept. 3, except during rush periods on week days, 7 to 9 a. m. and 4:30 to 6:30 p. m.

The announcement was made today by Edward Dana, executive vice-president and general manager.

On Sundays and holidays during this summer period, the five-cent fare for children will be in effect for the entire day.

No special tickets will be issued, and by agreement with the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway, adults may go to Revere Beach, via Maverick square, East Boston, from any place served by the Elevated system, for 15 cents, until and including Labor Day.

Miss Tufverson Is Placed in Boston

Mrs. Ruth F. Hall, 26, of 225 Essex street, Melrose, a worker in a Winter street cleansing shop, today startled police of two continents when she placed Miss Agnes Tufverson, missing bride of Captain Ivan Poderjay, alive and in Boston. Mrs. Hall is shown looking at the artist's sketch in the Boston Evening American which led her to say that Miss Tufverson visited her place of employment in May and again this month. BRIDE SOBS AT STORY OF HER TRAGIC MARRIAGE

State Closes on Claim She Saw Death Gun; Girl Is to Testify

TRIAL DRAMA

Developments today at the third day of trial for Norma Brighton Millen, charged as an accessory after the Needham Trust Company murder and robbery, were:

1—Norma's romance and marriage to Murton Millen, machine gun killer, detailed in the first time by Norma's mother.

2—Testimony that Norma saw her husband with the machine gun before it mowed down two policemen at Needham.

3—State rests. Defense opens with announcement that mental testimony will be offered for Norma.

BULLETIN

Dedham Courthouse, June 22—Norma Millen confided in mother that she yearned for a baby, the latter testified this afternoon at the trial of Murt Millen's bride.

Boston Evening American Staff Correspondent

Dedham Courthouse, June 22—Norma Brighton Millen's tragic romance and marriage with the killer, Murton Millen, were bared today before jury and public for the first time by her mother at Norma's trial as an accessory after bank robbery and murder.

Norma sobbed convulsively as Mrs. Margaret Smith Brighton described her "little girl's" courtship by the convicted machine gunner, now awaiting death sentence.

"You be careful of my little girl" Mrs. Brighton said she warned Murton.

"I will," she quoted Murton's solemn promise.

MOTHER'S TRAGIC STORY

In the crowded, hot, intensely quiet courtroom, where Murton Millen himself was convicted of murder, Norma's deep sobs were as ready as clock-tick.

Finally she bowed her head and covered her face with the handkerchief her mother had given her to carry during the trial.

Norma's childhood in a divided home, her trouble with her father, Rev. Norman Brighton, retired preacher, her meeting with Murt Millen at a Nantasket Beach dance hall last September, her swift courtship, her brief happiness, and then her sudden unhappiness were described in the mother's dramatic story—the first told at the opening of her defense.

"Don't worry about me," Norma said when she first told her mother of her love for Murt, the mother said.

"You want to be careful," was the mother's warning, she testified. "You're just a little girl."

Mrs. Brighton, a tall, graying woman, clad entirely in white, glanced about the courtroom.

STATE CLOSES ON GUN

"And she is a little girl," she added with emphasis.

The state rested its case against the 18-year-old bride shortly before noon, after State Detective-Lieut. John Stokes had testified Norma told him she saw the machine gun used in the Needham Trust Company murders in the Millen Roxbury home "two or three days" after it had been stolen from the Boston Auto Show and sometime before it spouted death at Needham.

Norma's chief counsel, George A. Douglas, in a brief opening, stated he would put in testimony to show that Norma's mind is much younger than that of the ordinary girl of her age.

Douglas then called four witnesses to be sworn and in a tense hush "the House of Brighton," hands upraised, became a unit for the first time in many years.

Rev. Norman Brighton, his son Clarence, and his second wife, Mrs. Muriel Brighton, clad entirely in blue, walked down the aisle to stand before the clerk's bench, hands up.

The former's preacher's first wife, Norma's mother, stepped from her chair inside the bar enclosure and stood beside them. All the four were sworn, and Mrs. Margaret Smith Brighton immediately took the stand.

NORMA IN TEARS

There were many things she was anxious to say. She talked swiftly in a very low voice. There were some things, she said, she did not want to say.

Norma almost at once began to weep. Spectators, nearly all women, leaned forward on the edge of the benches.

"Norma lived with me until she was 17," she said, after the jury learned she is no longer married to Brighton.

"And then did she go with her father?" Douglas suggested.

"He took her," she said, and glanced towards where he sat, impassive, almost behind his daughter.

Douglas took her swiftly to Norma's first meeting with Murton after she had testified Norma went with her to Hampton Beach for a vacation that summer and later worked there for a time.

"In September I was going for a week end to Nantasket. It was after school had commenced at Natick. Norma was back at home with her father and I was at Tewksbury. Norma was a senior at Natick High.

"We stayed at Nantasket two days. We both went to Paragon Park. There is a dance hall there. Norma likes to dance and she said 'mother, I'd like to go to a dance tonight' I said 'that's all at right.'

"She went to the dance. I didn't go with her. I saw no harm I went back to where I was staying. She came back about 12 o'clock. She said goodnight to someone at the door. I heard her but I did not know who brought her home.

"THEN I MET HIM"

"The next morning she told me she had danced with a boy named Murton Millen.

"She said he wanted to take her for a ride but it was late, Norma said, 'I said no.' She said he was coming for her at 9 o'clock that morning to take her riding. He came, and she introduced him to me. I told him to have her back by noon and he did."

Mrs. Brighton said Murton told her his folks owned a Hotel at Nantasket, and that upon Norma's return from the drive with Murton the latter drove her to Tewksbury.

"Norma was going back to her father's house," she testified.

"The following Saturday, she Murton Millen arrived at Tewksbury. She seemed a little bit upset about something.

"I was raining hard and I said: 'Why Norma, what are you doing out in all this rain?' She said, 'I had a little bit of trouble at home. Dad acts as if he doesn't want me.'"

Mrs. Brighton again glanced towards her divorced husband. He was gazing straight ahead. Norma was sobbing aloud.

TOOK HER TO HIS HOME

"I will write your father and ask him to keep you until I get a place for you," the mother testified she told Norma.

"Murton," she went on, "said he'd be glad to take her back."

"You be careful of my little girl," I told him."

"I will," he said."

The mother testified that Murton presumably took Norma on that occasion to his home in Lawrence avenue, Roxbury, instead of waiting until she found a home for her daughter. Later, she testified, she heard from Norma, who wrote:

"Don't worry about me. Murton has taken me to see his folks and his mother is a darling."

On her next visit Mrs. Brighton said she asked Norma:

"Do you like him?"

"Oh, yes, he's nice to me," she knoted Norma.

It was then the mother delivered her warning to Norma to "be careful," she said.

Two weeks later Norma telephoned her that Murton was going to Tewksbury to talk to her, the mother said.

"He wants to marry me," she quoted Norma.

"I said, 'Not as quick as this,'" the mother testified.

As a result of the conversation, Mrs. Brighton said she arranged to meet Norma and Murton at the North Station in Boston on the following Friday.

"IN LOVE IN A WAY"

"Norma put her arms around me," the mother recalled, her voice trembling for the first time.

"Murton Millen said my mother said Norma is a wonderful little girl and I'm fortunate to get her," the mother continued.

Douglas—Did he appear to be fond of her?"

"He did and I guess he was, in a way," was the answer.

Later, Mrs. Brighton called on Murton's mother and remained to lunch. They discussed the marriage and the matter of "nationality," she testified. Further testimony along this line was excluded.

"Some time later Norma came out to Tewksbury. I bought her a little wedding dress and to make the affair look right I announced the engagement."

Douglas interrupted:

"Did you notify her father?"

For the third time the witness glanced towards her divorced husband.

"It was in the paper," she said, "and he could read it. You must remember Norma and her father were not on speaking terms."

No member of the family attended Norma's wedding in November, Mrs. Brighton said. Murton and Norma went to Tewsbury to tell her of it.

LOVES DISAPPOINTMENT

Q—The same night?

A—No, the next day. She showed me the marriage certificate.

Norma's mother said she visited her daughter and Murton three or four times at their apartment, 1175 Boylston street.

She was asked to describe Norma's appearance after marriage. (An objection was sustained.)

"Norma told me he had a terrible temper. I noticed that Norma was losing weight," the mother continued.

She said Norma came to her and said:

"Mother, I'm disappointed in married life."

The mother said she asked her, "Is Murt good to you."

Norma's answer, she described as "yes" in a half-hearted way.

"There's one other important thing I'd like to tell," the mother began.

There was a bench conference and the noon recess was taken.

Norma, her face tear-stained, eyes red, was taken back to jail for lunch.

SAW DEATH GUN

Stokes' testimony about what Norma told him regarding the machine gun, property of the State police, came in response to the last question put by District-Attorney Dewing.

"What conversation," the prosecutor asked, "did you have with Norma Millen about the time she had first seen the machine gun?"

"I asked her," the state detective replied, "keeping in mind the Needham robbery, to tell me when she first saw the machine gun after she attended the automobile show at Mechanics building, and she answered 'two or three nights afterward at 89 Lawrence avenue, Roxbury.'"

Norma's defense chief, George A. Douglas, asked only one question after that:

"That was when Murton, Irving and Faher were present?"

"Yes," said Stokes.

"The state rests," Dewing announced.

QUOTES NORMA'S WORDS

Before the testimony regarding the machine-gun—government testimony that Norma knew it was in her husband's possession sometime before the Needham crimes on Feb. 2—Stokes had testified that Norma never told police she saw the crime car burned in Norwood or that she drove the three now-convicted killers from the scene.

Stokes said he had asked her about when she learned of the Needham crime and she said:

"I didn't hear about it directly after it was done. Murt said Brudge — Irving — was being threatened. He said something about bandits. He asked me if I would drive the Chevrolet and follow them. I didn't see the Packard burning. I was nervous. We came home. He didn't say any more about it."

"That was on February sixth," Stokes added.

"Did she say she drove back to Boston from Norwood?" Douglas asked in cross-examination.

"No she didn't," said Stokes.

February 11, when, it has been testified, Norma and Murton were in New York, was the date she first learned who committed the Needham crime, according to her story as it came out during Stokes' cross-examination.

"When you asked when she first learned about the Needham case she said after Irving had telephoned Murton on February 11 and they came back from New York?" asked Douglas.

"She said they got a phone call; Brudge got it at the house and then called Murt," Stokes said.

Stokes' cross-examination was in large part a repetition of his direct testimony of yesterday. Douglas and Dewing clashed several times.

NORMA PASSES, HEAD UP

Norma appeared at ease until her mother testified.

She was brought from the jail promptly at 10 o'clock. She passed through the crowd with her head up, looking straight ahead, a faint smile on her lips.

Her court attire was the same as on the two preceding days: White polka-dotted blue dress, white shoes, flesh-colored stockings. She wore neither hat nor gloves.

The larger crowd attracted by the appearance of a defendant in a criminal case since Jessie Costello's trial at Salem a year ago this time was gathered outside the elm-shaded courthouse this morning a full hour of Norma's scheduled transfer from the jail, where her husband awaits pronouncement of his doom, to the same bar of justice where it was made mandatory by the verdict of another jury.

Guard Changes in Norma's Daily March

HOUSE VOTES TO RECONSIDER POLICE BILL

Further Action Is Delayed After 99 to 89 Victory

Proponents of the police unification bill in the House won a victory today when it was voted on roll-call, 99 to 8, to reconsider yesterday's action in which the bill was rejected.

Representative Horace T. Cahill of Braintree, Republican, chairman of the judiciary committee, then offered several amendments.

Following this a voice vote postponed further action on the measure until 2:30 Monday at 2 p. m. This ended all possibility of prorogation of the Legislature this week.

8 CAUGHT AFTER 2-MILE CHASE

After a two mile chase in a commandeered car, Sergeant William Ferranzi of the Quincy police, arrested the drivers of two cars today at the Southern Artery and Furnace Brook Parkway, Quincy. Two other men and four girls were released.

The men arrested gave their names as Bernard Kag, 26, of Gibson street, Dorchester, and Edward Baker, Park street, Dorchester.

King and Baker, employees in a garage on Park street, Dorchester, had taken the cars according to police, without the consent of the owners, for a ride and swim at Nantasket.

They picked up the other two youths and later the girls joined the party, the police said.

In Dorchester court they were found guilty and fined $20 for appropriating a car without authority.

PODERJAY HELD IN VIENNA ON SUSPICION OF SLAYING

LONDON BRIDE DETAINED IN TUFVERSON CASE

Three Letters From Missing Attorney Show She Dropped Profession for Life in Europe

By International News Service

Vienna, June 22—Captain Ivan Poderjay, detained by the Vienna police in connection with the disappearance of Agnes Tufverson, New York lawyer whom he wed last December, has been charged with "suspicion of murder," police disclosed today.

Mme. Suzanne Ferrand, to whom Poderjay had previously been wedded in London, is being held on a charge of having profited in a crime, because she was found to be wearing clothing belonging to Miss Tufverson.

Poderjay previously had been accused of bigamy, but the Vienna police admitted it would be difficult to effect his extradition to the United States on that charge.

LOVE NOTES FOUND

Today the police announced that an American request for the extradition of the Jugo-Slav adventurer, believed to have had affairs with many women, was enroute to Vienna and that it probably would be honored.

Continuing their search of the apartment occupied by Poderjay and Mme. Ferrand the police today found more clothing and jewelry belonging to Miss Tufverson, answering to descriptions cabled here by the New York police.

They also found dozens of love letters written by Poderjay to Mme. Ferrand while he was in New York, describing his affair with Miss Tufverson.

Poderjay in each instance addressed Mme Ferrand as "Mistress" and signed himself "slave."

WAIT U. S. WORD

The police, continuing their investigation into Poderjay's activities here, while awaiting fuller information from America regarding Miss Tufverson's disappearance, are becoming convinced that Mme. Ferrand knows more about Poderjay's affairs than she has disclosed.

Vienna authorities have been swamped by queries from practically every country on the globe, asking for information concerning Poderjay in connection with disappearance of women.

Refute Captain's Tale Three Tufverson Letters

New York June 22—Three letters written by the missing Miss Agnes Tufverson were brought forward today, like words from a tomb, to refute Captain Ivan Poderjay's defense that their's was a marriage of convenience.

The letters showed that Miss Tufverson planned to abandon her brilliant legal career in America, and to spend the rest of her life abroad with the Jugoslavian soldier of fortune.

Police investigating Miss Tufverson's disappearance, uncovered today a letter written by a Connecticut woman to Poderjay. The police did not disclose where the letter was found, but it was believed likely it was discovered in the Tufverson apartment.

Neither did the police give out the woman's name.

NEED ONLY BODY

Encouraged by this disclosure, police strengthened their case of circumstantial evidence against Poderjay—a case lacking only the body to support a murder charge.

In one letter, dated December 6—four days after her marriage and 12 days before she vanished—Miss Tufverson wrote to Miss Helen Havener of the Saturday's Children Club, declining an invitation to be a director of the club, and saying:

"I am leaving the latter part of next or the week thereafter for London, England, as I expect to live the rest of my life there"

—This in contrast to Poderjay's story that they married only that she might not be a spinster and planned to part soon.

QUITS LAWYERS

On the same day, Miss Tufverson wrote to the board of directors of the New York County Lawyers' Association:

"It is with regret that I present my resignation as a member of the New York County Lawyers' Association to take effect December 31, 1933."

Urged to retain the membership which she had held seven years, Miss Tufverson wrote again December 12:

"The only reason for my resignation is that I am leaving very shortly for London, where I expect to reside indefinitely."

Load Limit 6 Tons on Chelsea Bridge

Vehicles of more than six tons will be barred from Chelsea north bridge, beginning next Wednesday, by order of the public works department of Boston. The order, issued today, warns the bridge has been weakened through decay of pilings and is unsafe for vehicles above that weight.

Photographs Give Clue

Photographs from the Boston Evening American of Miss Agnes Tufverson, missing New York attorney and bride of Captain Ivan Poderjay, placed her alive in Boston as late as this month and added new mystery to the world-wide drama. While her husband was being held today in Vienna, Austria, on "suspicion of slaying" in connection with her death, Mrs. Ruth Hall, 26, of 255 Essex street, Malden, a worker in a Winter street cleansing shop, identified a photograph and artist's drawing as a woman who twice brought goods to her. She said the first visit was on May 15 and the second between June 1 and 10. New York police were at once informed of the latest Boston development.

WIFE BIT HIM, DURIS CHARGES IN LOVE SUIT

Sportsman Says She Drove Him From Hull Home

Charging that his wife bit him and punched him when he was asleep, Thomas J. Duris, prominent Boston and Nantasket sportsman, was awarded a divorce today in Suffolk Probate Court on grounds of cruelty.

Duris, appearing with a score of other petitioners in the uncontested session before Judge Joseph R. McCoole, said he married his wife, Hope, in Nashua, N. H., in February, 1932, and lived in Boston and Hull.

A few months later, he said, his wife punched him in the face and so abused him that he fled their home at the beach resort and came to Boston. His wife trailed him, he said, and continued the abuse.

On several occasions, Duris said, Mrs. Duris would berate him, and when he'd finally go to bed, she'd attempt to keep him awake by biting his ear and calling him names.

"Once, after several hours of wrangling," Duris testified, "I finally fell asleep, and when my wife discovered that I had gone asleep she bit my ear and then awakened me with a punch in the face."

groomed and refined and apparently had taken considerable care of her face, so much so that her age was deceptive.

She was five feet 8 inches tall, weighed 150 pounds, had dark, glossy hair and wor a light-weight dark cloth coat, with a hat the same type as depicted in the Boston Evening American sketch.

SEARCH FOR SLIPS

Miss Tufverson is 43 years old, five feet six inches tall, has dark brown, bobbed hair and dark blue eyes and weighs about 135 pounds, according to the Ne ork police description.

On neither visit to the cleansing shop, that of the Sarni Cleansing Company at 8 Winter street, did the woman declared to be Miss Tufverson give her address.

In cases where the article to be cleansed is called for, no address is taken. The name of the customer is requested, however.

On both occasions, the stains to be taken out of the dark blue dress appeared to be liquor stains, Mrs. Hall told police.

In an effort to locate the slips made out for the dress work, Mrs. Hall said she would remain overtime at the cleansing shop tonight and conduct a search. Police are interested to learn what first name was given.

VANISHED IN DECEMBER

Miss Tufverson, New York police assert, went through a bigamous marriage ceremony with Captain Ivan Poderjay, Jugoslavian soldier of fortune who posed as a bachelor, on last December 4.

That night Captain Poderjay and Miss Tufverson went to a Hudson river pier in New York and then returned to their apartment, where the captain told a maid to leave and to return in two days.

Since then Miss Tufverson is not known to have been seen, at least by anyone who knew her.

On December 22 Poderjay boarded a steamer for Europe, taking with him two large trunks.

Suspected of having slain her, the captain was arrested in Vienna with another woman, declared to possess some of Miss Tufverson's trousseau.

HERBERT LARSEN

Herbert Larsen, 20, of 442 Summer street, East Boston, shown above, suffered a possible fracture of the skull when he dived into three feet of water in order to rescue William Penney, 5, of 12 Jeffries street, East Boston. The child fell into the water at the airport. Police pulled the Penney boy ashore and then grabbed Larsen, who hit his head on a rock as he dove into the water. ASTOR'S FAMILY ANGLES STUMP SOCIETY

Newport's '400' Trying to Unravel Tangle on Wedding Eve

Now that the Astor-French wedding has been settled for June 30, society here and in Newport and New York is trying to figure out the puzzling family situations growing out of the union.

There is, for example, Enzo Fiermonte, boxer husband of Mrs. Madeleine Force Astor Dick Fiermonte. He is already step-father to two sets of his wife's children and will become stepfather-in-law to Miss French.

Virginia French

Most trying of all, however, is the fact that Eileen Gillespie, who broke her engagement to young Astor, has a grandmother, Mrs. Sherman Watts, who lives only a few doors away from where the newlyweds will make their summer home.

Indeed, society is finding it all too vexing and would gladly swap several lorgnettes and shooting sticks for a little of Hollywood's savoir faire. Why, in Hollywood, the Astor-French wedding would call for no more than a buffet supper and a gypsy band.

The proud, old Gillespie family has decided to do just as it pleases. Their forte is changing the Astors' plans and they are not going into reserve.

Quite firmly Mrs. Gillespie said: "Oh, yes, we may be in Newport at the time of the Astor wedding, or, we may not. It all depends on our plans. We expect to sail for Europe the end of this month, and it is possible we may go to Newport before than. It is also possible we may not."

The bride will have but one attendant, her sister, Virginia Middleton French, while young Astor has chosen Lloyd P. Griscom of Syosset, Long Island, N. Y., as his best man.

Ushers named were Kingsley Swan, Guilford, Conn.; Elisha Dodge, Newbury, Mass.; Beverly A. Sage, New York and Newport; Francis P. Clark, New York and Newport; William Dick, Islip, Long Island; G. Phillip Lynch, Thomas LeBoutillier and J. G. Blaine Ewing, Jr., all of New York.

BERLIN GIVES WORLD DEBT WARNING

By Associated Press

Berlin, June 22—A warning that she would sever commercial relations was Germany's answer today to threats of other nations to enforce collection of interest on her foreign debts.

Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, president of the Reichsbank, said bluntly:

"It is no use to threaten or scold us."

Following the Reich's recent six-months moratorium on its obligations, France and England have discussed erecting clearing houses which would impound German commercial funds to meet payments frozen by the moratorium.

Kent's Sentence Is Suspended

Former Representative Robert T. Kent, charged with embezzlement of $100 from theg overnment while ad eputy colector of internal revenue at Springfield, was given a suspended sentence of 15 months and placed on probation for two years, in federal court.

Dealers Must Mark Bottles

By Associated Press

Washington, June 22—By decreeing that every liquor bottle must bear indestructible marks of identification, Secretary Morgenthau hoped today to cut the price of legal liquor and boost federal revenue. After July 1, the names or symbols of manufacturer and distiller must be blown into the glass of each bottle. To refill it will be forbidden, just as refilling tobacco containers is subject to heavy punishment.

Secretary Morgenthau called the announcement "the most serious blow struck at the bootlegger" since repeal. Morgenthau had discovered that bootleggers were buying second-hand bottles, and palming huge supplies of illicit liquor off on the public as legal stuff.

Bergdoll Gives Up Hope of Pardon

Weinsberg, Germany, June 22 (AP)—Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, American draft exader, said today he had given us all hope of securing a pardon from the present administration.

"One fails to understand the Americanism of the present administration," he said, "when one considers they have pardoned anarchists and communists. Why discriminate against me when I was, after all, only one of the World War's several hundred thousand draft dodgers?"

9 ARE HELD IN ANTI-NAZI RIOT AT HARVARD

Six men and three women, who yesterday furnished the oddest climax to a Harvard commencement day in the three centuries of the school's history—an anti-Nazi demonstration—today were held in $200 bail each in East Cambridge court.

The girls were Sarah Barr, 26, of 31 Hayward street, Boston, accused of disturbing the peace and speaking without a permit, and Nora Burke, 20, of 2 Central Square, Cambridge, and Sheila Shugrue, 18, of 631 Massachusetts avenue, Cambridge, both charged with interrupting and disturbing a public assembly.

PLEAD NOT GUILTY

The men were Irwin Miller, 28, of 10 Newbury street, the Back Bay; John Lanier, 20, of 181 Clark street, Cambridge; Joseph Mallner 25, of 2 Central square, Cambridge; David Johnson, 25, of 9 Boardman street, Cambridge; Joseph Jacobs, 21, of 246 Norwell street, Dorchester, and Charles McBride, 21, of 181 Clark street, Cambridge.

All of them were charged with disturbing the peace and speaking without a permit. All defendants pleaded not guilty. Their cases were continued until next Wednesday.

The request for a continuance was made both by Captain John J. Canney of the Cambridge police department, and Lazarus Ogus of 88 Hawthorne street, Chelsea, attorney for all of the defendants.

APPEALS FOR GIRLS

"I'd like to have a chance to find out who these people really are," Captain Canney told Judge Edward A. Counihan in explaining that he believed most of them had given assumed names as well as fictitious addresses.

Charles P. Rugg, Jr., who appeared for Harvard University, suggested that the girls be treated with leniency. This was done in a bench conference.

Just before the case was called, McBride arose in the prisoners' cage and addressed the judge.

"We're weak and hungry," he said, "almost starved. We'd like to have something to eat."

MONEY IS ARRANGED

"I'm sorry," Judge Counihan replied, "but we have no arrangements here to feed persons."

Three of the men still wore the lettered sweat shirts that they donned for yesterday's demonstration in Harvard square. And the legends of "Drive Out Hanfy" and "Free Thaelman" were even more conspicuous in the courtroom than they were in the square.

Attorney Lazarus announced that bail for the three girls would be furnished at once, and that the men would be freed before the end of the day.

All of the prisoners were returned to police headquarters to be finger-printed, but the Probation department made no record of them, pending a check on their names and addresses.

mercury down four degrees in an hour.

Yesterday's victims were:

Casey, Leo F., 64, of 93 Maple street, Melrose. Died of heart attack, superinduced by heat.

Frawley, Charles, 22, of 21 Langdon street, Roxbury. Drowned at Plymouth.

Frazer, Irving, 18, of Harrison street, Duxbury. Drowned at Powder Point.

Doherty, Frederick G., 10, of 11 Middlesex street, Malden. Drowned in Malden creek.

A number of narrow escapes and spectacular rescues from drowning kept this list from being longer.

RECORD BEACH TREK

William Kedian of 6 Whitney street, Roxbury, was dragged out of Dudley Pond in Wayland, after he had sunk in water over his depth and it took half an hour to revive him. He is in a serious condition at the Leonard Morse Hospital in Natick.

Beaches and other swimming places accommodated record crowds to equal the record heat. The 90-degree mercury marked the high for this year, and a 50,000 crowd set a new early season record for Revere Beach last night.

At Nantucket there were huge throngs all afternoon and night and beaches along South Boston and Dorchester waterfront were black with people far into the night.

Fires Near Beach Brings Protests

Continually burning fires along the Mile road end of Carson beach, in Boston, were the targets today for protests made by City Councillors George P. Donovan and John E. Kerrigan. The protests rested from a large number of complaints made by citizens who swim at the beach and who dislike the continuous smoke from the dump fires.

Leaps From Train, Man in Hospital

Frank Gitto, 24, of Chambers street, West End, was treated at Fordham hospital, New York, for immersion, and was admitted for observation, after he leaped from a passenger train into Hutchinson creek, Pelham bridge, in the Bronx. Police said Gitto opened the door of a Pullman to jump into the water.

'Free Ride' Follows Demonstration

"A riding we must go" was the slogan with this pair shown in the patrol wagon after they had been arrested during the anti-Nazi demonstration that threatened for a time to disrupt the Harvard commencement yesterday. They were two of the nine, including three women arrested during the demonstration.

Another view of the anti-Nazi demonstrators taken in the Cambridge police station as they were routed along the corridors of the building to be photographed and fingerprinted. While the anti-Nazis staged the demonstration against Dr. E. F. S. Hanfstaengl, their target was spending a peaceful day at Beverly. All were held in $200 bail today. Lost Man's Body Found on Beach

Pemaquid Beach, Me., June 21—The body of Arad Blaisdell, 80-year-old inmate of Sailors' Snug Harbor at Staten Island, N. Y., was found on the beach here. The aged man, for whom a search had been conducted since his disappearance last Sunday, was believed to have drowned at some other point as the spot where the body was found had been viewed several times previously by searchers. A lobster fisherman hunting for lost traps made the discovery.

VET DIES TO PUT END TO 'NOISE'

Worcester, June 22—Joseph S. Lowther, 45, a shell-shocked World War veteran, of May street, this city, committed suicide today by turning on the gas in the hot water heater in his kitchen, and then sitting in a chair beside the heater.

Lowther, a chain store manager, left a note to his wife, Ida, which read:

"Farewell, sweetheart, I can't stand the noise of the bursting shells overhead anymore. I would have done this before, but I love you too much and I didn't want to cause you any bother."

Mrs. Lowther was in New York visiting relatives.

HINDENBURG HOLDS KEY IN NAZI ROW

By KARL H. VON WIEGAND

Copyright, 1934, by Universal Service, Inc.

Berlin, June 22—Aged President Paul von Hindenburg has become the decisive factor in deciding between opposing Nazi domestic and foreign policies.

This became evident as Chancellor Hitler returned by air from a hurried conference with Von Hindenburg in East Prussia. It was learned, also, that Vice Chancellor von Papen would go to East Prussia for a talk with the president next week.

Hitler's conference with the president strongly marked the bitter fight over the course of the German ship of state in domestic and foreign affairs, precipitated into the open by Von Papen's sensational speech Sunday, defending the right to criticize Nazi government activities.

CENSORSHIP RULES

It is not a question of obtaining a new pilot, but of creating a change in the political course of Germany at home and abroad, experts said.

The storm raised by von Papen, the indignation among Nazis and the satisfaction and approval in other circles—all have been smothered under a blanketing press censorship.

Von Papen and Propaganda Minister Goebbels appeared together before the foreign press yesterday afternoon, as if trying to create the illusion that all is well.

GOEBBELS DISAGREES

Goebbels said he agreed with von Papen on many points, but that the speech should not have been made. Goebbels stated:

"We Nazis go on the principle that such things should not be talked about before the masses, for they cannot understand."

The immediate effect of von Papen's thrust is that Germany is now dividing into two big camps. Forces are lining up for what seems the inevitable struggle to influence or dictate the trend of the path that Germany will follow.

15 MILLION FOR SCHOOLS O. K.'D

Boston's school budget, calling for an expenditure of $15,137,254.84 for the maintenance of the system and the construction of new buildings, has been approved by Mayor [illegible] field.

The mayor also approved a supplementary budget of $68,575 for restoring the annual pay increases to school teachers and other school employees who have not reached the maximum salary. This represents $44 for each employee.

Boston public schools closed today after graduation exercises were held in the elementary and intermediate schools. The opening of the new term in the fall has been set for September 13 by the school committee.

Suicide Pact, Once Failure, Fulfilled by Gunshot

By International News Service

Des Moines, Ia., June 22—With the death of Margaret Bott, 22, from a self-inflicted bullet wound, a mother-daughter suicide pact today was fulfilled. Together they sought death a week ago by swimming out into Lake Michigan, their bodies trussed together with ropes. The mother, Mrs. Alice King Bott, was drowned, but the daughter was washed ashore.

Brought here to the home of an uncle, Dr. W. W. Pearson, to forget the tragedy, Miss Bott found an old pistol and shot herself Wednesday. She died late yesterday.

Thinking suicide together was preferable to separation through the probable death of Margaret on the operating table, mother and daughter made their suicide pact June 13. Miss Bott had undergone six mastoid operations. Doctors said another was necessary.

ADELE ASTAIRE IN DIVORCE 'SHOW'

London, June 22 (AP)—Lady Cavendish, who once made her living by appearing in public as the sparkling dancer, Adele Astaire, made another public appearance today.

She was not dancing, however, she was the principal witness in the divorce suit brought by Edward James, brother of Mrs. MarshallIeld, against Mrs. Tilly Losch James, former Viennese dancer.

The audience, nevertheless, was just as select and as smartly dressed as those who used to adorn the orchestra seats and boxes when the team of Fred and Adele Astaire stopped the show in "Lady Be Good" and "Funny Face."

Her appearance assisted in a marked degree toward bringing the present divorce proceedings up to a level which rates it as one of the smartest shows of the London season.

Lady Cavendish's petite figure made an attractive picture, set off as it was in a black and white costume.

Sir Patrick Hastings, attorney for Mrs. James, cross-examined Lady Cavendish for 20 minutes.

English law prevents the public from reading the details of evidence in divorce courts but fashion notes are still permitted and one newspaper described the James case as a dress rehearsal for the Eton-Harrow cricket match—another of London's fashion shows.

American Fascism Viewed by Thomas

Bound Brook, N. J., June 22 (INS)—Choosing "The Menace of Fascism and War" as its topic, the League for Industrial Democracy today entered the second day of its twentieth summer conference at Northover Camp near here.

Norman Thomas, Socialist leader, in opening the conference last night, declared:

"It will be clear that the raw materials of an American Fascism are lying around."

FIVE IN ATTACK ON PATROLMEN

Five men, who allegedly beat up two patrolmen at A and West Fourth streets, South Boston, when questioned by the patrolmen about a slight auto accident, were to face charges today in South Boston district court.

Several hundred persons looked on as the men mauled the two officers, Motorcycle Officer Henry Foster of the South Boston Station and Patrolman Thomas Johnson of the Roxbury Crossing station.

The men gave their names as Charles Chapin, 28, Washington street, South End; Joseph Hickey, 33, of the same address; Joseph Green, 28, of West Sixth street, South Boston; James Dwyer, 28, of F street, South Boston, and George Gordon, 33, of Athens street, South Boston.

GRAFT CHARGED IN LAND DEAL

"Graft" was the charge hurled by residents of Somerville in response to action taken by the state senate in passing a bill for third reading, authorizing the expenditure of $340,000 for property assessed at $80,000.

President Erland F. Fish of the senate was displeased at the passage of the measure and asked the clerk to call the name to enable him to vote on the question.

Senator Joseph Finnegan, of Dorchester, Democratic floor leader; Joseph B. Cluney, of Lynn; Joseph Cotton, of Lexington, and Charles C. Warren, of Arlington, were those who charged graft.

Wales Doesn't Look It But Is 40 Tomorrow

By Associated Press

London, June 22—He doesn't look it, but the Prince of Wales is 40 years old tomorrow.

Busier than ever and graver of mien, the heir to the throne of the British Empire does not get much relaxation these days. Content with his modest bachelor apartments at St. James' Palace and his country place at Sunningdale, he has devoted himself in recent months to the campaign for removing slums throughout the British Isles.

Society gets little chance nowadays to couple the name of the world's most eligible bachelor with some stately princess or lovely lady of the realm. His royal highness works hard at his job.

The prince appears to be in deadly earnest about the necessity for clearing up the slums, a gigantic program on which an appreciable start has already been made.

There will be no special celebrations of the anniversary tomorrow. But the royal postoffice will be deluged with congratulatory, official and personal, from every part of the world.

ENGLAND PLANS TO EXTEND HER DOLE

EDITOR'S NOTE

The dole has come to Great Britain to stay, H. R. Knicker-bocker writes in the eleventh article of his series on British recovery. The majority of the citizens believe that the dole has helped to attain recovery. Britain has spent four billion dollars on the dole in thirteen years and is now planning to increase its scope.

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER

Copyright, 1934, by International News Service. Reproduction in whole or part forbidden.

London, June 22—Britain has spent four billion dollars in the last 13 years on the dole. She spent half a billion dollars last year. She probably will spend $400,000,000 or more this year. Can Britain stand it? Does she intend to give up the dole?

She can stand it. She does not intend to give up the dole.

WILL EXTEND DOLE

Britain intends to extend the dole, make it available to more workers, include younger workers, and give them larger payments. She also intends to separate rigidly unemployment insurance from the dole proper.

Because Britons, the majority of Britons, believe that the dole, far from retarding recovery, has helped to attain it.

DOLE GETS CREDIT

No factor is more important for a judgment as to the reasons for British recovery than the factor of the dole. Britons hate to give up money at least as badly as any other nation. But the British public, Tories as well as Labor, is convinced that it has gained more by having the dole than it has lost.

It is convinced that one of the reasons for the fact that British never fell as far in the depression as other countries did, was the dole. It is convinced that one reason why Britain is climbing back to recovery quicker perhaps than any other country, is the dole.

This may sound like heresy, but it is the heresy of Tories, not Socialists. The program of extending the present government, a government backed by a House of Commons with 472 Conservatives, out of 615 members. This government is a capitalist government. It believes in the dole, as a measure to preserve capitalism.

First thing this government did with its budget surplus this year was to restore the cuts in the dole. Battling to keep its currency sound the government had cut the dole 10 per cent in October, 1931. Today the restored rates of benefits paid are for men over 21, 26.25; 18 to 21, $3.50; 17 to 18, $2.25; 16 to 17, $1.50. For women over 21 they are $3.75; 18 to 21, $3; 17 to 18, $1.87; 16 to 17, $1.25. Each adult dependent will receive $2.25.

DOLE FOR FARM HANDS

The government intends bringing into the unemployment insurance scheme farm laborers. There are 700,000 of them. They were left out before because it was claimed their wages were so low anyway that if the dole were offered them they would rather quit work and go on the dole.

Swarm of Bees Coaxed Off B. & M. Train

Greenfield, June 22—"Millions of bees" took possession of a northbound passenger train of the Boston and Maine Railroad and caused its end of discomfort and alarm to passengers, until their owner coaxed them to return to their box.

They escaped from a broken box, raced through the train and alarmed persons on the station platform. Sergeant Franklin L. Woodard of the local police department, to whom the bees were consigned, was sent for. He repaired the box and in a manner known only to himself gathered in the swarm.

Pal Found Guilty, $30,000 Bail Set

While his pal was being adjudged guilty of armed robbery of a chain store in Melrose in Middlesex superior court before Judge Beaudreau, Rosaire Pomerleau, arrested by Melrose police, was being arraigned in Malden district court, charged with two counts in connection with the chain store robberies.

He pleaded not guilty and was held in $30,000 bonds for the grand jury after a hearing.

NAZI SEA WRECK LAID TO TIDE

(By Universal Service)

Stavanger, Norway, June 22—The riptide caused by a dangerous eddying current in Lokn fjord, favorite scenic course of pleasure cruise ships, was held accountable for the sinking of the German liner Dresden and the death of four women passengers.

This was the only explanation advanced by pilots for the mishap which endangered the lives of 1,340 persons, passengers and crew of the Dresden, when the ship struck a submerged rockcliff near here and later was beached after other vessels accomplished the rescue of survivors.

An an inquiry was launched into the accident, the 20-year-old liner, which saw service in the war, had sunk under the wash off Karmoe, with salvage vessels clustering around.

LOVE AND GUNS MINGLE IN NORMA'S TRIAL

MOTHER BARES TRAGEDY IN HER DAUGHTER'S ROMANCE

Killer's Bride in Tears; State Rests After Record Presentation of Testimony; Stokes Unshaken

By JAMES J. SMITH
Boston Evening American Staff Correspondent

Dedham Courthouse, June 22—Romance and machine guns, stern argument and convulsive sobs were sprinked through the third day of Norma Millen's trial today as the state rested and defense began.

The tick of the courtroom clock could be heard while Norma's mother — estranged now from Norma's father, who has remarried —told of the girl's early life and the romance that made her the bride of a killer.

Frequent clashes between Prosecutor Edmund R. Dewing and Defense Counsel George A. Douglas kept the crowded courtroom on edge before the ceiling of Norma's mother.

Court convened at 10:44 a. m. Lieutenant Stokes was recalled to the stand by District Attorney Dewing. He identified two baggage checks he said were taken from Murton and Irving Millen at the time of their arrest in New York. The checks were marked as exhibits and shown to the jury.

Lieutenant Stokes was then taken under cross-examination by Attorney Douglas. Stokes said he was assigned to the investigation of the murder and robbery at noon of February 2.

Norma Wept During Grill, Says Stokes

Lieutenant Stokes said he accompanied New York police when Irving was arrested. He was not present when Murton was arrested and Norma was taken to a room in the hotel.

Q—Was she arrested? A—I'd say no: she was in custody.

Q—She was searched and kept under surveillance? A—Yes.

Q—Still, she was not under arrest? A—I don't know what you might call arrest. My conception of it and yours might be different.

Q—You didn't let her go? A—No. You wouldn't let anyone go whom you had reasonable suspicion to hold.

Q—Who was in the room when you talked with her? A—The two matrons. I don't know whether or not the uniformed officer was in the room or outside the door.

Q—Was she nervous and upset? A—Yes, she was.

Q—Did she cry most of the time? A—Yes.

Q—You asked her some questions and she gave you answers? A—Yes.

Q—When you started to question her she said she wanted her dad? A—Yes.

"She Said She Did Not See Car Burn"

Q—You asked her how many were in the Needham case? A—Yes, and she told me Irving, Murton and Faber.

Q—She told you she was merely suspicious of her husband and the others in connection with the Needham case? A—She stated definitely about the battery.

Q—What did she say about the battery? A—This statement was made at the State House when we returned to Boston. We held the conference in abeyance until we returned. She said:

"I didn't hear about it directly after it was done. Murt said Brudge (nickname for Irving), was being threatened. He said something about bandits. He asked me if I would drive the Chevrolet and follow them. I didn't see the Packard burning. I was nervous. We came home. He didn't say any more about it."

Q—Did she say she drove back from Norwood to Boston? A—No.

Q—Did she tell you that Murton drove? A—I don't recall how that was left. I do not think I asked her.

Q—There was some talk about guns? A—She said they carried guns, to shoot anyone who came after them.

Q—When you asked when she first learned about the Needham case, she said after Irving had telephoned Murton on February 11 and they came back from New York? A—She said they got a phone call. Brudge got it at the house and then called Murt.

"She Told of Police Being After Them"

Q—You asked her when she hired the apartment at 117 Audubon road? A—She said: "When they said the bandits were coming after them-each, no, wait a minute—I think it was when they said the police were after them to ask them about the battery. I know it cost us $65."

Q—Did she talk a number of times about bandits? A—The reference was made.

Q—Did she tell you that Murton and Irving had repaired the battery and that the men had done the job and were after them because they hadn't destroyed the battery? A—Not in that detail but the reference was made.

Q—You didn't arrest her in New York? A—No. I explained to her father that he could bring her back to Boston. We came back on the same train. We had the understanding that she was to appear here the next day as a material witness.

Stokes admitted that Norma was not placed under arrest until March 2, seven days after she was taken into custody in New York. He said he permitted her to go home in the custody of her father with the understanding that she would be available to the police when needed.

Didn't See Murton At Time of Arrest

She was taken from her father's home to the State House March 2, after the grand jury had indicted her and then to Dedham jail where she has since remained, Stokes said.

Q (by Douglas)—Did she tell you she had seen Murton carrying a gun? A—It was the machine gun I questioned her about.

Q—As a matter of fact you didn't see Murton when he was placed under arrest? A—Not until a few minutes afterward.

Q—I know you are too good a student of evidence to cause any confusion in that regard? A—I did not mean to convey the impression that I knew Murton carried a gun.

Douglas—No, I know you didn't.

Dewing introduced a wallet identified as Murton's and two bank books, both of which were identified as those of Norma's husband. They were admitted as exhibits.

Dewing then produced $153 and asked Stokes if he could identify the bills as having been taken from Norma.

When She Saw Gun Is Told by Stokes

Q—Did you compare them with the serial numbers furnished by the Needham Trust Co.? A—Yes.

The court ruled the bills could not be admitted and there was a brief squabble between Douglas and Dewing.

Before Stokes stepped from the stand, Dewing, still obviously nettled, said:

"One more question. What conversation did you have with Norma Millen about the first time she saw the machine gun?"

"I said to her, 'Keeping in mind the Needham robbery and in relation to your visit to the automobile show when was the first time you saw the machine gun?' And she answered, 'two or three days afterward at 39 Lawrence avenue, Roxbury.'"

Dewing—"That is, she meant two or three days after she went to the auto show?"

Douglas objected and Dewing pressed the question.

It was finally brought out that Norma had seen the gun at the Millen home two or three days after she attended the auto show with her husband.

Attorney Douglas began his opening argument at 11:39 a.m., a minute after the Commonwealth rested.

"Norma to Tell All," Is Douglas' Pledge

"I am going to put on the stand Norma Millen and she will give you of everything she knows in reference to this Needham case," he said. "I am going to permit her to briefly go over her history. How old she is. How old she was when she married this man.

"Where she met him. What happened at the time.

"Where she was living and briefly — extremely brief — how she went to live with her mother when there was a separation between her parents.

"How she lived with her mother until her mother was getting married for the second time and how she went to live with her father.

"He had her during her formative years. Then he got married and she lived there with her stepmother and her father—a retired clergyman. She will tell you how she went to Hampton Beach on a vacation with her mother, and then she went to Nantasket Beach. She went to a dance hall —young as she was—and there met Murton Millen.

"The courtship was rapid. She is going to testify how Murton Millen came to see her day after day. Within a week after meeting him, and through some differences, she left her home.

"She went to her mother, but her mother couldn't take her in, because there was no room where she worked. She went to Boston and hired a room. She seeks work and Murton Millen still comes to see her and presses marriage.

"With Mentality of Only a Young Child"

"She is 18 years of age and without the advice of her mother and her father she is married. She is married on November 12. She met him on Labor Day and is married November 12.

"We will put in testimony as to the mentality of this defendant. We will show that her mind is much younger than the ordinary girl of 18. She appears as nothing but a little girl, and today on this stand you will have the opportunity to learn just what is the mental age of this defendant.

"Testimony will go in that up to a certain age—six years—she never walked. That she lay in the Children's hospital for a year and a half or two years. And even today those legs are not normal. We are going to put that in so you will get the outline and complete picture of this defendant who is charged with a serious offense.

"We are going to put the mother and father on the stand. They will tell you what they know about their daughter's life. The mother will tell you that she went over to the girl's house.

"Mother Will Tell of Norma's Fear of Murt"

"She will say that Norma Millen showed signs of fear. She will testify as to a talk she had with Murton Millen in reference to her daughter.

"There will be testimony as to

Norma Coolest One in Court

Dedham Courthouse, June 22—Norma Millen seemed the coolest person in the courtroom today while spectators and court attaches alike mopped their brows.

He who seemed most affected by the heat of the day was her attorney, George A. Douglas, who resembles a human dynamo as he fires question after question.

'Arrest' Issue in Norma Case

Dedham Courthouse, June 22—The fine line between "arrest" and "custody" gave court spectators a few minutes of brisk repartee at the trial of Norma Millen today.

Lieut. John F. Stokes, state detective, was telling of Norma's questioning by him in New York last February when the question came up.

"Was she arrested?" "No."

"Was she in custody?" "Yes."

Stokes finally said to Attorney George A. Douglas: "My conception of it and yours might be different" and the matter was dropped.

BILL CUMMINGS FOUGHT OFF a fast field of daring drivers for over 4½ exhausting hours of nerve-racking, record-breaking speed to take the 500-mile classic at the Indianapolis Speedway. Press wires flashed: "Cummings, after stretching himself, first requested a cigarette." It was a Camel! For Bill is a Camel smoker of 12 years' standing, and knows that smoking a Camel gives you a quick "snap-back" in energy!

TRY THIS EXPERIENCE

in increasing energy quickly when worn out!

If you have ever tried to clock 300 or 400 miles in one day's drive you can imagine the terrific output of energy a racing driver crowds into "the 500" at Indianapolis.

As Bill Cummings said himself after the race: "33 drivers started the Indianapolis Classic this year...scorching the bricks over that 2½-mile track. For 200 grueling laps...nearly 5 hours of it...we kept up the blistering pace. I had to average 104.863 miles an hour, the new world's record for 'the 500' ...sometimes hitting it up to over 2 miles a minute ...to win. 4 hours and 46 minutes of this wrings the vitality out of a man and you can bet that I felt pretty well played out at the end of the race. My mechanic and I turned to Camels for the first luxurious smoke that always chases that tired feeling away. Any time I'm 'all in' I know that Camels will give me a 'lift' in energy. I smoke them steadily, too, because I know that Camels will never jangle healthy nerves."

This "energizing effect" in Camels, long recognized by Camel smokers, has recently been studied and confirmed by a famous research laboratory in New York. It is harmless, refreshing. You'll like Camels—a matchless blend of costlier tobaccos. You can "get a lift with a Camel" as often as you wish. Camels never get on your nerves, no matter how many you smoke.

NORMA SAW GUN BEFORE KILLINGS, SAYS STATE DETECTIVE

MOTHER'S STORY OF TRAGIC LOVE HAS BRIDE IN TEARS

a warning she received and forwarded to her daughter concerning Murton Millen.

"I am going to put the entiree picture before you. She is going to tell you that at no time did she ever drive that car back from Norwood. On this particular night her husband said, 'Come along, we are going to my father's house.' She had been there many times and she always did exactly as he said.

"They went to Lawrence avenue and met Irving and Faber there. Her husband said: 'I want you to follow us in the Chevrolet.' And she will tell you that she never drove when her husband was in the car.

"He said 'I want you to follow us, we are going to get rid of a car.' She followed them. She did his bidding then as she always had. She will tell you that they drove so fast that other automobiles prevented her from following closely behind them.

"She will tell you that they turned into Everett street, and then she lost sight of them, she missed them entirely. She couldn't see the other car and she went up to a lighted driveway and turned around in this lighted place.

"She came back thinking they might have continued on the main highway. She heard her husband shouting and she stopped and went back to him.

"Murton Called Her Fool Out There Then"

"He said: 'You fool, why didn't you follow us? Get over there!'

"She huddled over on the other side of the seat and waited. In a few minutes Irving, Murton and Faber came back. Her husband drove the car back to Lawrence avenue.

"She is going to tell you that she didn't know the car was being burned. She was told they were going to get rid of a car. When Irving got in the car, she will tell you, he started to say things to her. She was nervous and didn't dare open her mouth.

"They drove back to Lawrence avenue. Then in plaintive, little tones—that I have heard so often—she started to ask her husband questions and for the first time he told her that they burned the car because bandits are after us.' She didn't know that Faber had any connection with that and thought Irving and Murton burned the car because she believed her husband.

"She believed his story that he was in the radio business. He took her to New York to buy radios.

"Her husband never left her out of his sight. He would take her to his Lawrence avenue home and say 'stay here.'

"They went to New York and met Mesinger. She is going to tell you that at no time did she hear her husband discuss any bank robbery with Mesinger, nor did she hear her husband mention any bank robbery while Messinger was with them.

"In Flight She Did as Murton Told Her"

"She was going to take a bath when Mesainger came into the room. She took the bath and she wasn't in the room five minutes or five seconds while Messinger was there. When she came out of the bathroom Messinger left.

"Soon after this her husband got a telephone call from Irving and he says: 'come on we're going back to Boston.'

"She wanted to know what it is all about and what they were jumping back and forth for. He told her that the police were after him because of the Needham affair and she said: 'I thought it was bandits.' He says 'that's true but the police are looking for Irving and me and we've got to go back.'

"She was nervous and excited and did the bidding of her husband. The story she will tell you will be exactly the same as she told Lieutenant Stokes and which she still tells now. They came back to Boston and hired an apartment and then went to Washington and New York. She did her husband's bidding at all times.

"There is nothing in this case that links this defendant up in anything she did for Faber in any way, shape or manner."

Douglas concluded his opening at 11:57 and court declared a recess.

Norma Sobs as Mother Tells of Meeting Murt

Norma's mother, Mrs. Margaret R. Smith Brighton, was the first defense witness. She testified she worked as a nurse in the Tewksbury State Hospital. Norma's 19th birthday, she said, was on November 27 last year.

Q—You are not now married to Mr. Brighton? A—No, our marriage was not a success.

Douglas interrupted: "We will not go into that—"

Mrs. Brighton continued: "Norma was with me until she was 12. Then her father took her. I went out West with the other two children. I came back to Boston and went to work."

Norma cried and her head was drooping as her mother, obviously struggling for control, described the high school days of her daughter.

"I went to Nantasket for a week-end, last September, and Norma wanted to go with me," she continued. "It was after she had enrolled as a senior in high school. We went to Paragon Park, and Norma said, 'Mother, I would like to dance tonight.' I told her she could go in. I went back to where I was staying. She came back about 12 o'clock.

"She said good night to someone at the door. I heard her, but I did not know who had brought her home. The next morning she told me it was Murton Millen.

"I Begged Her Not to Leave Father's Home"

"She said he wanted to take her for a ride that night and she told him her mother would not like it. She said he offered to take her for a ride that day and I told her it was all right.

"Murton Millen called for her Sunday morning and she went riding. They came back about noon and Norma told me Murton would be glad to take us back to Tewksbury the next day.

"She had introduced me to him before they went riding. He told me they had a hotel at Nantasket. Monday he drove us back to Tewksbury and drove Norma to her father's house in Natick.

"The following Saturday she came up to see me. Murton Millen was with her. She was upset.

"I asked her what was the matter and she told me her father was angry, and she thought he did not want her at home. I told her I ogo back there and wait till I could find a home for her.

"She said no, that she was leaving. I begged her to go back and I told Murton Millen: 'You take care of her and bring her back. She is just a little girl,' I told him."

Norma's mother looked at the jury and added vehemently:

"And she is just a little girl."

"She Told Me She Liked His People"

"I learned later he did not take her home but took her to his home in Lawrence avenue. She was there for quite a while, I must not worry and that she was going back to school, and that she had met Murton Millen's folks and they were nice to her.

"She came up to see me again and I said: 'I don't know whether I should tell about this or not—

Dewing interrupted the witness frequently and she was apparently flustered by his objections.

"I told Norma to be careful and asked her if she had told Bob anything about this. She said no, that she liked him, so I told her to be careful, that she was just a little girl and I wanted her to finish school."

Norma's mother talked rapidly and Norma cried as the story went on.

"She said Murton let her drive his car . . ."

'She Told Me They Wanted to Marry'

Douglas: "She never had a car before."

"No, but she knew something about driving. She went back to Boston after that visit to me and about two weeks later she called me on the telephone and told me Murton wanted to marry her. She said: 'Ilhe is right here and he wants to talk wita you.'

"We arranged to meet at the North Station. I went in and she threw her arms around me, just like she did when she was a little girl. She told me not to worry. I told her she did not know what she was doing, that she was just a little girl.

"Murton said his mother thought Norma was a fine girl and he thought he was lucky that such a nice girl was willing to marry him. That day I went over to Murton Millen's house and met his people. His mother seemed to be very nice.

"I stayed for lunch, and they drove back with me to Tewksbury. I didn't see her for some time. Then she came out alone and after that I announced the engagement . . . I wanted it to look right . . .

"Norma and Murton went back to Boston. I learned later they were married in a hotel in Boston on a Saturday night. It was November 12th or 18th."

Douglas—It was the 28th.

Dewing—Let the witness testify.

Q—(By Douglas)—Were any of her family present at the ceremony? A—No, but the next day they came out to see me. Norma showed me the wedding certificate. I went in with her last October to look for an apartment. We found one and she lived there alone until she was married, then Murton came to live there. I went to see them there.

"Bride Tells of Murt's Terrible Temper"

Q—Did you see her husband there? A—Yes, he seemed to come from nowhere. He told me that he was in the radio business and was interested in oil stocks.

Q—Tell the jury how she looked after her marriage. Ashe told me Murton had a terrible temper. She told me other things. I don't want to repeat them in court.

Then ewere frequent clashes between Dewing and Douglas while e mother of Norma testified.

"Norma looked pale, she was losing weight. I asked her if she was happy . . . She told me her married life was a disappointment. Then she said he was good to her sometimes. There is one important thing she told me . . . May I tell it here?"

(Dewing and Douglas quarreled and finally the court said, "You may tell it to me."

Women spectators, who greatly outnumbered men, leaned forward trying to catch the words. There was bench conference, then recess.

Boston Wing Commander
Model Builders' Course—Lesson 12

Making the wire fittings, Junior Birdmen, is the next step in constructing our low-wing flier and we start with the landing gear, which is a simple construction detail and should not take long.

In our glider we did not use wire "A" and one in Group "B" ... because we had no undercarriage, ... by the no motor and our wi... was a perm... New England Aircraft School. You anent fixture instead may be fortunate ... of adjustable. ... Junior Birdman whose pic... is printed ... in Sidney ... Smith, 37, of Wollas... Mass., Cl...

The landing gear as you probably know is that part of an airplane underneath the body or fuselage to which the wheels are attached and which includes springs or other devices to act as absorbers to ease the shock when the craft comes in contact with the ground on landing.

Edward Nasin

Our landing gear for the low-wing flier is a very simple affair. The .040 gauge wire which we purchased for this member is of such springy nature that we need no shock absorber at all.

Angular Bends Need Flat Nose Pliers

Since all bends, in constructing our landing gear, are angular and not curved, we will use the flat nose pliers.

The drawing of the finished low-wing flier published in this column a few days ago, clearly shows the shape in which to bend your landing gear. Any further description would be unnecessary except that when you have the wire shaped out, slip the wheels onto the tips of the landing gear and then put a drop of cement on each end of the wire. When this is dried, it will form a "BUMP" at the end on the wire and prevent the wheels from slipping off. Do not attach your landing gear to your fuselage as yet. We will leave that until we are ready to assemble all parts.

In the diagram published with today's column, we give you the other wire fittings' exact size. All you really have to do is lay your .028 wire out on these plans and shape it with your round nose and flat nose pliers.

Figure "A" in diagram is the propeller shaft. This shaft is first made in the shape shown by the heavy line. When completed, stick the pointed end through the hub, or center, of your propeller. After you have inserted your shaft through the hub, then bend the tip as illustrated by the dotted line so that the propeller will not be able to come off. Next place some glue on the end of the shaft, draw the propeller toward the point so that the propeller does not spin on the shaft. It is the shaft, revolving, that turns the propeller. The propeller will not turn free of the shaft.

This latter procedure is illustrated in Figure 6 in diagram published the other day showing the construction steps in carving the propeller.

Wings of Model To Be Movable

And now for the wing clips. It is necessary to have the wing of our model adjustable so that we can move it forward and backward on our fuselage to obtain the best position for flying. Figures "B" and "C" in our diagram in this column gives the front and rear clips. "B," the smaller clip, is for the front of the wing and "C," the larger, is for the rear.

While there is very little difference in their size, be sure you make them exactly as given in this diagram in order to give your wing the proper angle of incidence. This angle of incidence is necessary for good performance.

The drawing of the completed model published the other day, shows exactly how to fasten the wing clips into position. First place the wing on your work bench in the same position as when you gave it the dihedral angle, with the two wing tips up in the air.

Then take the smaller wing clip "B" and insert it across the center about one-sixteenth (1 1-6th) of an inch in back of the front edge. Dig the small prong at each end of the clip into the wing and cement permanently into place.

Then take the larger wing clip "C" and insert it on the opposite or back edge of the wing and cement this in place too. This also is shown in the drawing of the model published a few days ago.

Figure "D" in the diagram shows the rear motor hook and the tail skid, a two in one fitting. When this is shaped, place it away with your other parts. In our next lesson we will learn how to assemble the complete model.

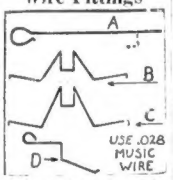
Wire Fittings



The wire fittings shown in this illustration for the low wing flier are exact size. Lay your finger over these patterns and bend with round nose and flat nose pliers. The round nose pliers are for rings and the flat nose pliers are for angular bends.

The Washington SIDESHOW

By GEORGE ROTHWELL BROWN
Washington, June 21—Dr. James T. Shotwell of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace and one of Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler's helpful assistants, is being given credit in Washington for having put America into a sidedoor of the League of Nations—the international labor organization.

The slickest set of skids that were greased at any time during the recent session of Congress were employed. Prof. Shotwell's spirit hovered over the proceedings of the House foreign affairs committee while his corporeal self paced the corridor outside the committee room as the setup was being cunningly arranged inside.

The three American delegates to the League labor conference, John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers, Elmer Andrews of New York, and Hugh S. Hanna of the labor department, have found their status changed from "unofficial" to "official." At least that's the supposition in Washington.

G. O. P. Pepped Up

Henry P. Fletcher, taking his new job as Republican national chairman seriously, has pepped up the G. O. P. boys with visions of a smashing good showing in November. Some of the more optimistic are even talking about carrying the House. Two weeks ago they never dreamed of such a thing.

The big need is money. The campaign can't be run on air. Mr. Fletcher has just left for his first trip to New York since he was elevated to his new post. Lively expectations of rich financial results are entertained in Republican campaign circles. If Mr. Fletcher brings back some dough, he will find a halo awaiting him.

No Leader

Criticism of Senator Joe Robinson's Democratic leadership wasn't heard in the Senate. The fiasco of adjournment, delayed only a day, has already been forgotten. The Senate knows that strictly speaking there is no such thing as a "leader of the Senate." The rules don't permit it. Every Senator is an individualist. And the leader of the Senate is the Senator who happens to be in charge of a bill that is under consideration. There has really been no Senate leader since the days of Arthur P. Gorman and Nelson W. Aldrich. They led the Senate on sheer intellect—and because they were spokesmen of powerful interests outside the Senate. Those days have passed, and Washington isn't likely to see them again in a hurry.

to a woman who loves her children

Dear Mother:--

If we know our human nature, Mother, you are always thinking about ways of helping your children ... improving their minds and morals ... making them happy and healthy!

It's just as easy for city boys and girls to become narrow-minded and provincial as it is for their "country cousins" unless they get a chance to see the "other side" of life frequently. Did you ever think what an advantage it is to city-raised youngsters to get out into the country every once in a while? To see cows and chickens ... and open fields ... and winding streams?

Get a good car as an investment in your children's future, Mother. Go on picnics with them ... go to the beach ... go on educational week-end trips ... and you'll be building healthy bodies and wide-awake minds.

Think it over, Mother, and while you're thinking, turn to the classified columns of the American and Advertiser this week during the special Summer Used Car Carnival which we are conducting and see for yourself how easy it is to own a really fine automobile.

Yours for happy, healthy youngsters

CURLEY CHARGE 'BUNK,' SAYS MAYNARD

By BERNARD J. DOHERTY

Charges by former Mayor Curley of a "crooked" Worcester convention manipulated by "a gang of political racketeers" today drew the fire of Governor Ely and Chairman Joseph A. Maynard of the Democratic state committee.

"People who live in glass houses shouldn't throw stones," Governor Ely declared.

Maynard went farther.

"I thought the former mayor was a good sport but I guess I was mistaken," the chairman said.

"As for spending money in the convention, Mr. Curley would know more about that than any one else, I think. His talk of buying votes to secure the nomination of General Cole is a lot of bunk."

RARE GERANIUM COLOGNE SEEMS TO EXERT A STRANGE FASCINATION

Given in Marriage

By Adele Garrison

Madge, armed with Avis Arlen's confession, proceeds to spike that young woman's future operations against the happiness of Mary and Noel.

CHAPTER 70

[illegible] A long breath of re[illegible] Avis Arlen [illegible] had entered [illegible] the gate of [illegible] I had thought at one time [illegible] necessary [illegible] future dealings with her. [illegible] illusions concerning Avis Arlen. She had the tenacity of an ignorant unscrupulous and obstinate nature. She had [illegible] passed for her heart and her mind upon Noel [illegible] she had failed utterly in her attempt to break up the attachment between Mary and Noel would not deter her in the least from making further essays in Noel's direction. I was sure also that in her code breaking up a marriage was no whit worse than [illegible] two [illegible].

A PROTECTION AGAINST AVIS

I [illegible] the weapon which she had just put into my hands [illegible] to guard the [illegible] happiness of Mary and Noel [illegible].

[illegible] Avis. I [illegible] there knowing [illegible] value of suspense in dealing with her.

"What are you going to do with me?" she whispered.

"That depends upon yourself," I answered promptly.

"I don't know what you mean," she [illegible].

"Oh yes you do," I said, "and you have just 30 seconds to decide upon your course. If you promise me that you will make no further attempt to interfere with the happiness of Mary and Noel either before their marriage or afterwards I will say nothing about this letter and all you will have to do is to keep silent. If Mr. Veritzen ever questions you upon the subject, deny that you ever saw it or knew anything about it."

A PROMISE

"I should not give this counsel to [illegible] but I know that the utterance of [illegible] qualms whatsoever."

She [illegible] breath [illegible].

"You are very harsh," she said.

"[illegible]," I answered [illegible] your [illegible] gives me no alternative [illegible]. The [illegible] seconds are almost up. Do you promise?"

"What else can I do?" she was [illegible]. "You are taking away my last chance of happiness but I have to [illegible]. I must agree to your terms because I must keep my position with Mr. Veritzen on account of my mother."

High [illegible] came back to me, and I suddenly found myself agreeing with him. I did not believe in this pretense of poverty.

The [illegible] was plain. If she did not fear the loss of her position, she would not fear the consequences of breaking any promise made to me. But I had no recourse now. I had given her my word and I must abide by it.

"Then you promise," I said again. "I want your solemn word of honor."

She hesitated for [illegible] tion of a second.

"Word of honor," she said. "I promise."

"See that you keep your word," I said sternly. "As [illegible] I shall keep this letter [illegible] and tell no one of its theft from Mr. Veritzen's [illegible] but if I ever know of your doing the least thing to interfere in any way with Noel and Mary I shall consider myself released from the promise I have just given you and will publish your description [illegible]. Under any other circumstances you need [illegible] worry. I think that is your train coming."

I opened the door to see Hugh rapidly advancing toward us, tickets in hand.

"Your train is just pulling in, Miss Arlen," he said. [illegible]

He slipped the ticket into her hand and motioned her ahead of us.

"I shall have to [illegible] about Mrs. Graham," she said, but when she had [illegible] ahead of us he spoke to me quickly.

"If that man starts to get on this train," he said, "I am [illegible] sure that he has been [illegible] by Philip [illegible] following. If he does, do you want [illegible] to warn her? What shall I [illegible] her?"

Clever Way to Make Hooked Rugs

Early American rugs are finding their place in every so many homes these days. Rugs crocheted from crepe paper are especially lovely because of the variety and beauty of the colors. They are sturdy too and economical for a rug crocheted from crepe strips costs a fraction of the cost of a rug crocheted from yarn. Eight to twelve folds of crepe make a good-sized scatter rug with five or six colors arranged harmoniously or more colors used [illegible] fashion. Cut your strips across the grain two inches wide, stretch and twist them and crochet with a large wooden hook [illegible] crochet [illegible] When finished your rug [illegible] thick and with [illegible] will wear long and well.

Capes are due to go a-swaggering along the best beaches this summer. When Lighting a Cigarette

By MRS. BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Mr. Jones escorts Miss Smith to a dinner party. Miss Smith asks for a cigarette. Mr. Jones hands her one and takes one himself. [illegible] the cigarette he takes the first light and then lights Miss Smith's with the same match. Mr. Jones feels that this is the proper thing to do because he gets all the sulphur. However Mr. Brown disagrees [illegible] his opinion is that the cigarette should be lighted before it is handed to Miss Smith. I do not think that this is one [illegible].

Which [illegible] correct?

T.

The [illegible] thing is for the man to light the match and hold it while the woman lights her own cigarette. There isn't enough sulphur to [illegible] an issue over and matches [illegible] as you see, there is a question of sanitation in the third suggestion.

Support Your Partner in Takeout

By Josephine Culbertson

After a player has opened the bidding and his partner has made a Takeout for which he has strong support immediate indication of that support should be given if the Opening bidder does not have a better bid. This is a sound rule even when the Opening bid has been based on a strong five-card suit of higher rank as if the responding hand is able to support the original bid he can show it on a later round of bidding.

A failure to recognize this principle may easily cost either a game or a Slam because if there is a simple Rebid following the regular Takeout the responding hand may feel constrained to pass and if the ultimate objective is Slam rather than game, it may be different in later rounds of bidding to show the distributional [illegible].

The following hand taken from a Duplicate game, aptly illustrates this principle.

North: ♠ J 10 8; ♡ A K 6; ◇ A J 10 8; ♣ 8 5 4

West: ♠ A K Q 9 6; ♡ J 7 5 4; ◇ —; ♣ A 9 6 2

East: ♠ 7 3; ♡ —; ◇ K Q 9 7 6 2; ♣ K Q J 10 3

South: ♠ 5 4 2; ♡ Q 10 9 8 3 2; ◇ 5 4 3; ♣ 7

The best result was achieved at the table where Mr. A. H. Morehead sat East and Mr. Samuel Fry, Jr. sat West. The bidding went:

South	West	North	East
Pass	1 ♠	Pass	2 ♣ (1)
Pass	4 ♣ (2)	Pass	4 ◇ (3)
Pass	4 ♠ (4)	Pass	6 ♣ (5)
Pass	Pass	Double (6)	Redouble
Pass	Pass	Pass

(1) Mr. Morehead prefers the five-card club suit to the six-card diamond suit for his Takeout because of the honor score.

(2) Mr. Fry rightly decides not to rebid his strong spade suit but to indicate immediately game certainty and Slam possibilities by the double jump of his partner's bid.

(3) Mr. Morehead now shows his six-card diamond suit.

(4) Mr. Fry decides to rebid the spades as a mild Slam try, showing the solidity of the suit rather than bid four notrump which would have been an equally good call.

(5) Mr. Morehead has all the information that is needed to bid the Slam. He knows he has no club losers and obviously some losers from his hand can be discarded on West's solid spade suit.

(6) North cannot be greatly blamed for doubling a Slam contract with two Aces and a King as well as scattered Jacks and Tens.

In the play Mr. Morehead made all 13 tricks, ruffing three of his diamonds and discarding the remaining three on the spades in his partner's hand.

Tomorrow's Hand

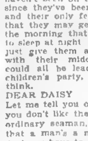
West: ♠ 8 5; ♡ 6 5; ◇ K J 9 7 2; ♣ J 9 6 5

East: ♠ J 7 4; ♡ Q 10 9 8 2; ◇ 10 3 4; ♣ 7 4

South: ♠ A Q 2; ♡ 7 3; ◇ A Q 8 6 3; ♣ A 10 2

The hand will be discussed in tomorrow's article.

Pandora Tells You



DEAR PANDORA:

What do you think of sailors? What with the fleet in and all that, there's a great deal of discussion among all the girls about the romantic aura that a middy blouse and a pair of bandy-legged britches shed on a very ordinary young man. My older brother has had three sailors from one of the battleships spending the week-end at our house, and if there is any difference between them and other men I'll try to tell you what it is. They may have a well-rounded knowledge of the world but it's all gained through a porthole. None of these lads will get up for breakfast, they haven't been on time for a meal since they've been in the house and their only fear seems to be that they may get up so late in the morning that they can't get to sleep at night. In my opinion just give them a whistle to go with their middies and they could all be leading men at a children's party. What do you think.

DAISY.

DEAR DAISY:

Let me tell you one thing . . . If you don't like the uniform of the ordinary seaman, just remember that a man's a man for a' that. And you have to start at the bottom and work up, so wait till you get an admiral or something with so much braid he can't stand up and a cocked hat, sword, spangles and a barge all to himself. Then you'll pipe a different tune, and on your own tin whistle at that.

PANDORA.

Hot Olive Oil Massage for Cuticle

Question: I do not use any nail polish on my fingernails and they are very nice looking as they have a natural pink color. However, the tips of my fingernails are snow white and I use nothing on them. This does not seem natural. Will you kindly tell me what causes this. Is it a condition of the body?

H. E. B., Nahant.

Answer: There is a lack of lime in your system. Buy a small quantity of lime and ask your druggist how to prepare it for consumption. If you are in a hard water district you will have to use a water softener in your bath. Each night massage in a little warm olive oil around your cuticle—especially under the tips of your fingernails.

Scar Tissue

Question: What is a cure for the scars and enlarged pores left on the skin after pimples have disappeared? How shall I use witch hazel? Will it dry and shrivel the skin?

H. S., Winthrop.

Answer: The best way to treat the scars left by pimples is to massage them gently with cold cream. The manipulation increases circulation around this area and helps the scars heal faster. No doubt they will disappear in time. To apply witch hazel, use a small piece of absorbent cotton. It is drying so if your skin is inclined to be dry it is best to dilute the witch hazel with a solution of glycerine and rose water or use a less drying lotion.

Creams for Dry Skins

Question: My skin is very dry and becomes scaly when I wash it with soap. It seems to be getting flabby and wrinkled.

J. M. J., Cambridge.

Answer: Give your dry skin plenty of lubricating cream—a cream for cleansing dry skins, a good nourishing cream, a mild astringent to tone and protect the skin from sun and wind. Cleanse your face with cream, soap and water only occasionally. Apply mild astringent to close the pores. Then apply nourishing cream. Make the application of your cleansing and nourishing cream a part of the campaign to fight the tendency of your muscles to droop and your skin to fall into lines and wrinkles.

Apply cream to forehead, cheeks, nose and chin and massage it well into the skin. The movements are up from the chin to the ear, from the corners of the mouth to the temple, from the nose up and out to the temple, up from the eyebrows across the forehead, from the center of the forehead outward and [illegible] very lightly around the eyes with the fingertips. Leave a film of cream on all night and in the morning, before you powder, be sure to use a little cream or lotion that will protect your dry skin from weathering.

Cocoa Butter Massage

Question—Can you tell me if there is any way I can enlarge my bust? Is cocoa butter a good massage?

A. M., Braintree.

Answer—In the morning and at night bathe bust in warm then cold water, then massage for several minutes with warm cocoa butter with an upward outward movement. Deep breathing exercises will help to develop the chest and exercise will help strengthen the muscles that support chest and bust.

Eye Muscle Oil

Question—I have an excellent skin which is marred only by baggy and wrinkled eye-lids. Cold cream does not seem to help. I would like to know of a treatment that would prove of benefit to my skin.

F. W., Mansfield.

Answer: Baggy and wrinkled eyelids may be due to poor circulation, eye strain, tired or weak eyes or a general lack of vitality. Wash your eyes daily with a solution of boric acid and water. Lie down for 15 or 20 minutes each afternoon after applying pads of absorbent cotton soaked in a fine eye astringent. Each night before going to bed pat on a rich nourishing cream or eye muscle oil and leave it on over night.

GIRL IN THE FAMILY -:- A Choice Between Marriage for Love or Loyalty -:- By Beatrice Burton

Allen Demands Susan Wed at Once

CHAPTER XXXI

Susan reminded her that they did not know how to get in touch with her father. "And John's had hours time to get to Omaha," she said. "So long as there's a chance of Uncle Worthy getting better we might not to call John away from his job. It means everything to him to get away on a good start. We'll take care of this somehow ourselves. You and Lutie and I."

John blew, as the socks, but she was not going to leave the house while her uncle was so desperately ill.

"I'll go up and get your uncle's bank book" said Aunt Edna, getting to her feet slowly and painfully. She went limping upstairs and came back with the book in her hand.

I think you'd better go right downtown with this. If you don't draw it you can get it back before two o'clock. Try to get them to give you a hundred dollars." She handed the book over to Susan. "I'm sure Wallace can arrange it."

DINA HEARTBROKEN

Susan decided to telephone Wallace about the money before she started.

"No. Nobody can touch your uncle's account," Wallace told her over the telephone when she called him. "But I'll stop in to see you people on my home tonight. I think I can fix up with the bank what you want. I'll be there a little after five."

At 5 when Susan put on her wraps to go out to telephone Allen at his boarding house Aunt Edna popped her rosebud out from the pantry to ask where she was going.

"I won't be gone five minutes. Stan called back to her.

"Better wait until Wallace comes," said her aunt. "Lutie's asleep, and I'll feel just as if I'm all alone here if you go now." She came out into the hall, genuine fear written all across her wide, pallow face as Susan took off her things.

At half past 5 Wallace arrived. He saw as she opened the door to him, that there were marks of strain like gray shadows under his eyes and that the corners of her mouth drooped.

"I've an errand to do, and I'm going to do it while you're here," she said to him. "Aunt Edna's nervous and she doesn't want to be left alone with Lutie. I'll be right back."

In the middle of the next block was a candy store kept by an old fellow named Mrs. Bradman. It was the sort of shop that sells boys, cards to school children, a penny orange and almond taffy and lemon sticks. Just inside the door was a shelf with a few magazines and the cheaper sort of magazines. At one end of it was a pay telephone. Susan closed it up and gave the number that Allen had written down for her the night before.

A woman's voice said "Hello" in her ear after a moment. "Mrs. Jones speaking?"

Jones . . . Yes Jones was the name, Susan saw, glancing down at the paper she held. "May I please speak to Mr Allen Shores?"

WALLACE SYMPATHETIC

There was no answer to her question but after a long wait Allen's voice came over the wire. Hello

"This is Susan."

"Yes I know." Simply the sound of her voice made a lump of tears come up into the back of Susan's throat.

You told me to call you up," she said and wondered if he could tell by the sound of her voice that she was half crying.

Yes. You were going to tell me what you'd decided to do." Susan saw him caught sight of herself in the dim mirror above the shelf and stopped. "I don't know what to say to you," she said. "Everything is just the way it was last night . . . I wish I could see you."

"How about coming downtown to have dinner with me?

I couldn't do that. Couldn't get away."

You could after you'd finished the work out there," he said. "Couldn't Mary your maid used to have her evenings off?

Couldn't you come out here after you've had your dinner, Allen?"

No. I've been kicked out of your house once Susan. I'll be damned if I give them a chance to do it again."

Well, then, will you meet me on the corner about seven? At seven Lutie and Aunt Edna would be eating their dinner.

When she got back to the house Wallace was in the parlor, sitting in Uncle Worthy's chair before the fire smoking a cigar and talking in a low sympathetic voice. Lutie had put on her pearl earrings and some lipstick for him, and Aunt Edna was looking brighter than she had looked in a long time. She threw Susan a rather watery smile when she came into the room.

"Do you know what this wonderful boy has done, Susan? Here he is take $300 out of his own pocket! He explained that we couldn't touch Worthy's money but that we could borrow this now and pay it back when Worthy's better."

Wallace got up and looked quizzically at Susan, his hands behind him, his heels clicking. "Mrs. Broderick has asked me to stay to dinner. Do you mind if I do?" he asked.

SUSAN MEETS ALLEN

At half past six the four of them sat down to lamb stew, bread and butter and plain lettuce salad. At exactly seven Susan brought in the dessert, a bowl of preserved peaches, and the battered old silver tea coffee service. While Aunt Edna was pouring the coffee into the tiny eggshell cups she slipped out into the kitchen without making any excuse. She had left her coat there on a chair. She slipped into it and went quickly out at the side door.

Allen was standing directly in front of the house where Wallace's car stood its head lights on and the South gland banked covering the radiator. He was looking at it and he did not see her until she touched him on the sleeve of his overcoat.

"The old family car in the old family spot," he said drily.

So it is," replied Yes. It's Wallace's. He brought some money out to Aunt Edna from the bank and she asked him to stay to dinner.

"You couldn't have done more with me," he said. I suppose you have to stay here because he was here. Did he bring you more flowers tonight?"

"Oh, Allen, you must want to understand everything. I had nothing to do with his coming. Wallace here. Aunt Edna asked him while I was out of the . . . telephoning you."

He lifted his shoulders in a shrug. "Yes, I've been a pitch that you can't refuse, I've up from the house," he said.

Susan saw that Stan, waked down to the corner the pain in their faces hidden from each other by the winter darkness.

"I don't understand you Susan Allen said finally when they were back in the car once more. You say you love me but last night you let me leave that house alone—and that was before your uncle had his stroke. You tell me you've broken your engagement to Sheffer but he was here at night to see you and for tonight he's having dinner with you. Last night you promised me that you'd marry me today. I'm ready to marry you right now. I've got the license in my pocket. My voice was as cold and clear as the night itself.

I don't how can I go away and get married in the middle of all this?" Susan's voice twisted themselves together as she tried to explain her predicament to him. "Don't Uncle Worthy lying propped unconscious and my aunt's so sick and so frightened that they're like acouple of helpless children.

"They weren't like helpless children last night when they were leaving the few down to you!" Allen cut in roughly, angrily. "Susan I don't want to marry me do you?" You've changed your mind about me since that fellow came home and you've had a chance to think over his gardenias and his automobile and his swell job at the bank. Why don't you be honest with yourself and with me and tell me so?"

"If you want me to be honest I love you, she said. With a face Wallace he'd come home I've almost hated him I used to think he was good looking, and I don't even think him that any more—I know he's still as attractive as he used to seem to me but I can't see it with my own eyes." She bent her head quickly and in the glow of Wallace's parking lights she kissed the lapel of Allen's coat

"SOUNDS LIKE HEAVEN"

"Well then, why won't you come away with me tonight and be married just so I can be sure of you. I told you last night that it would be all right with me if you came back here for a few days until your aunts are well. He held her cold bare hands in his pressing them hard in his urgency. And while we're here I'll be hunting up some kind of flat for us. It probably won't be much—two rooms over a tenement or something like that but we'll be together, Susan. I'll wipe all the dishes for you, and scrub the floors on Saturday afternoon. It'll be fun, Susan, and in a few months I'll have a regular job with real money—"

Susan covered his mouth with one of her hands. "It isn't a bit of use to plan anything like that, Allen. It sounds like heaven, but it won't work out. This sickness of Uncle Worthy's isn't a matter of just a few days. The doctor says he may be in a wheel chair for months. For years. And I can't leave the house for a long time I can't see him. Why, those two women can't even make the furnace fire burn—" She whisked suddenly as a familiar voice was blown to her on the wind. It came from the house, where Aunt Edna stood on the porch, sharply outlined against the lighted doorway like a figure cut out of black paper and pasted on an orange-colored rectangle.

"Susan!" she called. "That you out there, Susan?"

I'll be right in, Aunt Edna."

But the short solid figure did not budge an inch. It stood and waited.

"Susan!" Aunt Edna's voice came again. For 20 years she had been making scathing remarks about the mothers of Center street who came out on the front steps and called their children in from the street. At last she was doing it herself.

Stage Is Set for the Bride

This table was shown at Paine's Furniture Company and carries out the color scheme of ivory and silver. The cloth is heavy Damask, and the glassware and china are both banded in silver.

Happy is the bride who sits at a beautifully appointed table for her wedding breakfast or reception. It should be planned well in advance so that everything will go smoothly when the great day arrives.

If it also well be have the wedding cake made much in advance so that it will have aged and acquired a rich flavor by the time it is to be served.

Here's one which has been tested and approved and is excellent:

WEDDING FRUIT CAKE

1 lb. sifted flour
1 tsp. baking powder

Tempting, Cool Dishes for the Menu

From Martha Lee's Friday Morning Broadcast Over Station WAAB

We think you probably will be interested in all the cool, refreshing items that are in the market this weekend; fruits and vegetables that can be used as salads rather than cooked. The native lettuce, tomatoes, cucumbers and radishes are all very plentiful. So are scallions and leeks at 5c a bunch

Something new in the market is Swiss chard, 3 pounds for 25 cents You will also be interested to hear that summer squash is on the market and is selling for 15 cents a pound. Asparagus is still coming from Maryland and is selling for 25 cents a bunch. Something novel in the grape line is a very tiny white grape, called the Lady Thompson Grape. It is about ¼ the size of an ordinary small white grape. They come from California and sell for 25 cents for a large bunch. Also very tasty ingredient for a fruit cup or salad

Peaches, although not at their best, are selling for 75 cents a basket. Fresh apricots from California come in baskets of five dozen for 90 cents. Plums in four dozen baskets for 75 cents. Melons —honeydew and honeymoon—are up to their usual standard of deliciousness. These sell for about 50 cents. They are very large and can serve eight people very easily

In the meat markets lamb seems to be the popular offering for the week—lamb legs at 27 cents and lamb fores at 15 cents. We suggest that you could roast the lamb on Saturday and then on Sunday serve a platter of cold cuts with a relish a large bowl of potato salad, for which we have an excellent recipe and green beans, which by the way, are very cheap and plentiful this week-end.

The menu that offered breasts of ducks a few weeks ago is making the same offer this week. They will lard them free of charge and deliver anywhere around Boston. This makes a most unusual dish for parties, luncheons or dinners.

Here is a menu for your Sunday dinner:

Crabmeat and Cucumber Cocktail
Platter of Cold Meats
Pepper Relish
French Peas
Potato Salad
Hot Rolls
Strawberry Chantilly
Iced Coffee

Hotel Men Seek Removal of Code

New London, Conn. June 22 (INS)—Connecticut hotel men favor "getting down about code restrictions once the emergency which brought into being national codes has passed.

Colonel Clarence W. Seymour of West Hartford voiced the sentiment of those in attendance at the annual two-day convention here when he said, "Removal of the code will mean a return to operation on a more economical basis."

Kidney Infection Is Dangerous

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

RECENTLY I received a letter from a physician who specializes in the practice of urology. That specialty is devoted to diseases of the kidneys and bladder. The doctor wrote that "pyelitis" a common infection of the kidneys is often the result of negligence and in many instances could be prevented. He asked me to write on this subject and emphasize the importance of early recognition and care of this disease

Pyelitis as its name implies, is an inflammation of the pelvis of the kidney. The pelvis is that part of the kidney where the urine collects before it passes into the ureter. The ureter is the tube or passageway that carries the urine to the bladder.

Pyelitis can often be traced to a localized infection of some remote part of the body. Infection in the tonsils, nasal sinuses or teeth may be the underlying cause. For example, a child suffers from infected tonsils and the poisons are absorbed into the circulation. They may then be carried to the kidneys and produce pyelitis

This disease is a common affliction of young children and infants. Unfortunately, it is often overlooked in these sufferers and because it is not controlled serious damage is done to the kidneys. Of course, pyelitis may also attack adults. In older persons it sometimes the result of an obstruction somewhere in the kidney ureter or bladder. In elderly males it is often the result of an enlarged prostate gland

As a rule, the patient has a constant fever. He complains of slight pain or discomfort in the region of the kidney. But persistent headache, nausea, vomiting loss of appetite, and digestive disturbances are symptoms that should not be overlooked

Treatment consists of special diet urinary antiseptics particularly getting rid of the underlying point of infection. The diet should be simple, nutritious and bland. Salt, pepper, spices pickles and other condiments should be avoided. I can think of no better advices than to encourage the drinking of copious amounts of water

Your Cooking Problems

Question: "Please tell me what the difference is between brown rice and wild rice?"

Mrs. G. N., Melrose.

Answer Brown rice is one of the same family as the familiar white rice, except that it is left unpolished with some of the outer covering. Wild rice is a cereal found in certain parts of this country. It has a peculiar flavor and is generally considered as being served with fried chicken a favorite dish of the South.

Question: "Will you please send me a list of foods that will help keep my child's teeth in good condition? She has been having many cavities developing and then after they have been fixed the fillings fall out."

Mrs. N. P., Quincy

Answer The hardness of the teeth is due largely to the lime which they contain and the cause of teeth that are hard do not decay as readily. The main causes for teeth decay as given by the Health Dept. at the State House are as follows

1.—Too much starch and sugar in the diet.

2.—Not enough vitamins A, B, and C fruits & vegetables particularly raw juice

3.—Not enough calcium and [illegible] milk

4.—Not enough rest and sleep

5.—Some physical ailment that reduces the normal nutrition of the body

6.—Too much gum chewing of hours and wages officially in a letter to the President. Those old tyrants, supply and demand, and survival of the fittest, retain power although survival of the fittest often means survival of the meanest, of those that pay the smallest wages and cut prices through inferior work.

Henry Ford says lower prices in the automobile industry are a good sign, predicts the thirty-hour week and says that and the six-hour day would have been here by now if they had let things alone.

Things are made more rapidly than they used to be, and "people must have more time to use what they make," according to Mr. Ford.

Six-hour day, 30-hour week, will be a blessing for those that like to take life easy and a greater blessing, with double opportunity, for the minority glad to work hard while they are young, to have freedom when they are old.

Miss Pearl Potter of Providence, R. I., disappeared from the steamer City of Lowell. This note was found: "I have no one living and I am not a Christian and the physical body is ill, and that is the only thing that counts."

Alexander Pope did not agree with her about the physical body when he sat writing his "Essay on Man," after his nurse had sewn around his body the heavy canvas jacket that enabled him to sit upright.

Epictetus, a slave, crippled by the cruelty of his master, knew that the physical body amounted to little. The same was true of Milton writing when blind, Beethoven composing his magnificent Ninth Symphony when stone deaf, or the courageous Cranmer, who signed a recantation of his religious belief, withdrew that recantation and, burned alive, first held in the fire, steadfastly exposing it to the flames, the hand with which he had signed the recantation, says: "This hand, this wicked hand, hath offended."

The one thing that is NOT important is the physical body. That is merely a machine for carrying the spirit around and enabling it to do what it has to do.

Germany abolishes 40-hour week that was based on lack of employment and desire to "divide jobs." The government announcement says that restriction of working hours is unnecessary because of increased employment; in some lines there is a shortage of skilled labor.

We have not managed so well here.

Despite all efforts at saving, New York City's government finds that it will have to spend about six hundred million dollars in 1935, one hundred millions more than the United States government used to spend for the entire nation a little before the big war.

Practically all the real estate in New York City is assessed and taxed for at least 50 per cent more than the price for which it could be sold. How long that can last time will tell.

Boston Boy Sought to Star in Dickens Novel

A Boston youngster is being sought for the [illegible] Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer film version of "David Copperfield," famous novel of Charles Dickens.

[illegible] "[illegible] of Boston and New England are even more English than those of London," said Grady. "That's why I came here to find a boy for the title role."

Mr. Grady wants a boy who not only fits Dickens' description of his hero but also one who can speak the King's English with a broad "a." He will interview candidates for the part at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel, in Arlington street, opposite the Public Gardens, all day tomorrow and on Monday if necessary.

So if you have a little David Copperfield in your home take him to see Mr. Grady tomorrow. It may mean the start of a Hollywood career.

Children from Lowell, Brockton, Salem, Lynn, New Bedford and other New England communities are also to be interviewed in the effort to complete the film cast. The suggestion that the child actors be found in or near Boston was made by David O. Selznick, producer of the film, after a recent six weeks' visit in England.

JUDGE, NO JURY, TO SETTLE WILL

The will of George Francis, late Boston restaurateur, must be contested before a judge and not before a jury, according to the ruling of Judge Arthur W. Dolan today in Suffolk Probate Court.

Judge Dolan made the ruling on the petition of two sisters and a brother of Francis, who claimed that he was of unsound mind and was unduly influenced when he made the will.

Under the terms of the will, the two sisters, Mrs. Sarah James and Mrs. Mary Lapworth, and the brother, William Francis, were left $20,000. The remainder of the $420,000 estate was left to friends, former employes and public institutions.

Attorney Harry F. R. Dolan, representing the contestants, told the court that during the latter years of his life Francis used to take women to clubs and inns.

Attorney James M. Graham argued in support of the will and said that although Francis acted strange there was no evidence of unsound mind or undue influence.

This Is Life
ROBERT E. ROGERS

Thus ended the week and the Reunion on one of the hottest days of the year. In the morning came the academic procession, which has hardly changed in its order and detail since I was a boy in Cambridge Latin School and used to like to watch the dignitaries marching to Sanders Theater in Memorial Hall, which was quite large enough for the Commencement exercises in those days. The present erection of planks and canvas behind Seaver Hall serves well enough, with efficiency if not with beauty.

Robert E. Rogers

In those days there was Charles William Eliot and Charles Eliot Norton and Dean Briggs—may the earth lie light upon him!—and old J. Pierpont Morgan, his nose terrible to behold, and visiting celebrities of an elder day. Once there was the Duke of the Abruzzi. Another time Woodrow Wilson. Somehow the honorary degree people seemed more picturesque then than they do today. A pretty drab lot yesterday, methought, all academic folks and not very famous ones at that.

After the exercises the Chief Marshal's lunch. I didn't eat anything particularly. Memories, memories! Twenty-four years ago I was a kid instructor at Williams College. It was Garfield's first or second year as president of the college, the post which he has just resigned. After the exercises in the old "Congo" church, we all went to a cold lunch which had been laid out in the Gym. It was a hot morning and the sun poured down through a glass skylight on the tables laid out with salmon mayonnaise, chicken salad and so forth.

That evening the entire academic community of Williamstown came down seriously ill. Every physician for miles around was up all night. A distinguished guest, honorary degree recipient, nearly died. A member of the senior class did die. Since that day I have had a scanner against graduation victuals on a hot day.

I said a day or two ago that I didn't think anything would happen and that if it did it wouldn't be Hanfstaengl's fault. Well, what did happen was so slight that it hardly counted. I took it for granted that if anything was being planned it would be for Commencement Day. It would be difficult, I knew, because the entire business—procession, exercises and all—takes place within the guarded fence and gates of the Yard. No woman could even get a foot inside before 4 o'clock and then only into the Seaver quadrangle and under the most rigid scrutiny.

I could not see what happened. For a few brief minutes I heard the voice of two women, raised shrilly—and it seemed to me with more than a touch of hysteria—at the moment when President Conant was presenting Ed H. C. Cutler Chief Marshal of 1929, for the class gift of $100,000, which has been a tradition for over a generation.

Later, a woman told me, two women had chained themselves to the women's stand, exactly as the English suffragettes used in England during the 1912-13 campaign for suffrage, when they poured vitriol in the letter boxes and slashed paintings in the Royal Academy and chained themselves to Lloyd George's railings in Downing street.

The women my informant told me, were hot and tired scared, defiant and hysterical. One of them was surrounded by the class marshal and aids, all dreadfully embarrassed and anxious only to get her away as soon as possible. Finally they tore away a post, slipped the chain and escorted the woman away. From my seat down in front I could hear her voice wailing like a fire siren. The other fell into the hands of the police and was treated less gently. But she was gotten rid of too, speedily, and thereafter the exercises proceeded without further interruption.

That is what made me so sorry for those two foolish women. The whole thing lasted less than ten minutes, hardly distracted the attention of the great audience, did not succeed in making Dr. Conant fumble a single sentence and was over almost before the crowd had begun to realize something was happening. It really was too hot a day to expend so much energy and idealism and bodily discomfort for such utterly negative results.

By evening the men who hadn't seen one another—many of them for twenty-five years—were on their way to their fraternity and widely scattered homes. With a more real appreciation of one another, I think, and a re-creation of their feeling for the University. We shall be 25 years older when we meet again. Many of us will not come back. It's something to look forward to, at least.

PONZI OUTLINES WAR AGAINST BANISHMENT

Will Take His Case to Roosevelt, He Says; Plans Appeals

Although at the Boston immigration offices it was said today that no official note has been received that Charles Ponzi must leave the country by July 10, Ponzi was quick to seize upon these words as proof that he is to be allowed to send appeals to the President, asking him to intercede in the Ponzi case.

DENIES "FORTUNE"

Pending the fall of the "Damocles sword" hanging above his head, Ponzi went to work as usual today as a meat salesman and announced that he had refused an offer of a Sunday square tarte.

"If I had as much money—this buried treasure people say I have—wouldn't it be logical that I wouldn't hesitate to leave the country?" Ponzi queried.

"But, to start life anew in a strange country is pretty difficult."

If he is deported, although he has hopes that he will not be, Ponzi would go to Italy and said: He still has relatives in the country he last saw in 1905, and one son who now may work for Mussolini.

Genoa is the native city of the major Ponzi would not reveal.

"There are appeals here and appeals there," he explained. "There always is the petition for a habeas corpus writ when I am arrested.

NOL PROS OFFERED

"They've got to get up early in the morning to get ahead of Charlie Ponzi. I'll tell you something you didn't know. I had wanted to go back to Italy. I could have had my case nol prossed in 1924.

"They told me then that I could escape going to jail if I'd return to Italy.

Ponzi who has become a self-taught law student since his $10,000,000 bubble burst, still maintains that the state and federal convictions that broke upon his head on charges in based on the same offence and therefore do not involve two separate instances of prosecution.

"There are a number of precedents to substantiate my claims in this case," he declared.

Pastor, Wife to Adopt 'Ideal Girl'

Rev. Ralph L. Norsworthy (left) and Mrs. Norsworthy (right) of Lowell have found their ideal girl, Ethel Goss, 17 (center), and have filed a petition to adopt her. Ethel is 5 feet 5 inches, has large brown eyes, dark brown hair and a large, bright smile. Ethel is just as anxious to be adopted as Rev. Norsworthy is to adopt her. (Picture by Boston Evening American Staff Photographer.)

Pastor Will Adopt 'Ideal' 17-Year-Old Girl

...pastor, report as one of a fam... of 23 children, made such a ...eange in Ethel Leon Goss, former Lowell girl that Rev. and Mrs. Ralph L. Norsworthy decided their "ideal girl" and adopted her.

Six years ago the couple knew Ethel as a little girl of 11, a member of Rev. Norsworthy's Highland Union Methodist Episcopal Church in Lowell, but she didn't make any particular sort of an impression on them, they said today.

FIND "IDEAL GIRL"

But Ethel, who had moved to Springfield with her family, came back to Lowell on a visit, and when the Norsworthys saw her they couldn't resist her charm.

...n't know they had found the ideal girl they had always wanted for their own daughter. Ethel was willing.

After a series of conferences with the girl's family, the family was willing, too.

So another story with a Cinderella twist. Ethel will be given a chance to resume the high school education that circumstances forced her to abandon.

GOING TO COLLEGE

She's going to go to college and she will be the ... The whole world of new and pretty clothes is opening to her.

The adoption has already taken place in fact since the 17-year-old miss is now living with her foster parents, but there are still a few legal formalities to be gone through.

It was when the adoption petition was filed in Middlesex probate court that the story of the "ideal girl" came to light.

If all goes well, Ethel will take the Norsworthy name and become another person, in law as well as in life.

They were sentenced by Judge Raoul H. Beaudreau to terms in the Middlesex House of Correction.

DELEGATES ARE LATE GETTING TO CITY

10,000 Expected for Election Battle on Next Sunday

Lawrence, June 22 A flag-decked Lawrence today greeted some 1000 delegates and members of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, arriving for that organization's 14th annual state encampment.

The delegates however were to tardy in getting to the opening session of the three-day event, and adjournment by State Commander Walter G. Howard, almost as soon as it had been called to order.

10,000 BY SUNDAY

The meeting was postponed until late afternoon. It is expected, however, that more than 10,000 veterans will be in the city by Sunday night, when officers will be elected for the coming year.

The high light of the conclave is expected to come with the contest for offices in the women's auxiliary, which is a ladies' affair here.

Miss Mary Hughes, of Weymouth, the senior vice president is unopposed for the presidency, but bitter ballot battles are expected in all other contests.

Mrs. Betsy Misner, of Dorchester, and Helen McGary, of Brookline, are the rivals for the senior vice-presidency. The former is now junior vice-president, and the latter is treasurer.

REVERE WOMEN CLASH

Two Revere women, Mrs. Florence Ford and Mrs. Gertrude Mac-Donald, will clash for the junior vice-presidency.

Features on the evening's program include the initiation and parade of the Military Order of Cooties, the opening of the Penn Village in the Bay State Arena and a fireworks display in the Municipal Stadium. There will also be the midnight smokers of various groups in halls and hotels all over town.

LEGION TOLD TO OUTLAW WAR

A program of preparedness to cut war down to a minimum today was the Rev. Robert J. White, national chaplain of the American Legion, at the annual convention of the Massachusetts Legion Auxiliary at New Ocean House, Swampscott.

A four point program was outlined by the chaplain as the best means of checking advocates of unpreparedness. He stressed especially the growth of that movement among the younger element, particularly college students.

National preparedness, including expert estimates of the cost of defense, was the first point in his suggested program.

Other points were the carrying on of the Citizens' Military Training Camps; enlarging of the National Guard, and support of the universal draft act.

"Leagues cannot end war," Chaplain White declared. "We had an example of that in the Japanese defiance to the League court. We must prepare ourselves."

Actress to Quit

Hollywood, June 22 (INS)—Planning to retire from the stage, Helen Holstein, European actress, was scheduled to arrive here tomorrow. She is the wife of Julius Klein, Universal Pictures executive.

NEW YORK
DAY BY DAY

New York, June 22—Thoughts while strolling: A lady's hair couldn't be that color. Bud Kelland's spirits and ties are same material. And Joseph P. Day is seldom without a carnation.

They say Mrs. Pat Campbell, King Edward's idol, meeting London's most famous waif, Chaplin, asked to kiss him.

O. O. McIntyre

One word description of Eddie Peabody—country jakeish. Messmore Kendall juts a mean eyebrow. Dandy dog shop name: Puppyville. All S. S. Van Dine's books are a six-letter-word murder case. Most of us hanker for school when too late. Marion Davies and Dorothy Mackaill, close friends, look alike.

Indigestion jitter: Sumner Blossom a usual lunch is a slab of apple pie covered with melted cheese. Fred Stone in one of Amon Carter's six gallon hats. Just what did they ever do to gall hoarders" Julia Sanderson's flutey up-take laugh would answer that.

George Armsby always looks as though he has just received the works in a barber chair. Dale Carnegie and Pierre Cartier have identical profiles. Time for a Society for Improvement of the Rich. A stirring book-title: "To The Vanquished!" And a salute to most of us these days.

One of my favorite people—Oliver Herford. Dawn Powell is from out Ohio way. Never see those young Rollos in horn-rimmed glasses anymore. And Mrs Bryan suggests hat, gloves and stick. And Mrs. Bryan Foy a 22-year-old Fannie Brice. If the Fairbanks-Pickford muss flares on Page One again, I'll scream.

Morton Downey is America's champ badge collector. In almost every pocket, he has one or more—symbols of benefits and gifts of lodges. His collection totals several hundred gathered hither and yon. As a shaver his burning ambition was to be a policeman and sport a badge. As a tenor singer, he never lost the longing.

Hamish McLaurin, the writer, whose hobby is magic, has been knocking about India for several months hoping to see the famous rope trick. But like everybody finds only people who know someone who knows someone who saw it. The rope trick is legend and nothing more. McLaurin also finds most Indian conjurers vastly over-touted. American illusionists—such as Thurston and Cardini—have them lashed to the mast. Indians often surpass in feats of muscular control, swallowing and regurgitating and the like. But these are not illusions. The charm of their work is performing evanishments at close range, thus perfecting the art of mis direction.

I saw the immaculate Cardini, with silk hat and Inverness cape, go through his routine wearing gloves for perhaps the 20th time a recent evening. His performance is a glossy study in superb finish. Every gesture a poem and triumph of facial expression. There are no efforts at humor in a Cardini performance. He takes his prestidigitations seriously. And I have never seen him when he did not bring down the house. Yet I always have prickly qualms in going to kill himself inhaling the smoke of the hundreds of lighted cigarettes he yanks from the air.

Elsie Janis has re-opened her beautiful estate near Tarrytown, bought with the profits of her most famous play, The Vanderbilt Cup. Since directing a successful revue on Broadway last season, she has been devoting her time to writing fiction. In maturer years she perfers this mode of expression.

Another stage deserter is the lively Eddie Dowling. But instead of literature, he has turned to politics. And Broadway rumors insist that he is not kidding: that he is seriously considering possibility of a U. S. Senate seat. Dowling's real name is Goucher and his grandfather founded the girls' college bearing that name. He is happily married to Ray Dooley, the original baby-voiced talker of infantile roles in the Follies. She was one of the very few comics who could make Ziegfeld's glum expression break into a smile.

I received a manicure today in one of those silvered and mirrored botiques by a striking Julia Hoyt, looking brunette with a feather of snow-white, like a cockatoo, in her hair. As she polished I spun a fanciful web—perhaps an impoverished princess in exile. At length I commented on the white streak and my admiration therefore. "You can get it done for $2," she said. How consistently life cracks up the illusions.

ADAM SCOFFLAW'S DIGEST

Waked this morning at four of the clock by my wyfe, I thing the day she hath set aside to wash her pretties, nor could I sleep a wink thereafter, which set me into a tasty temper so that, on arising, I did, mayhap, speak too harshly when she fetch my coffee, for I did see, from the corner of my eye, how her mouth droop and a troubled frown ripple her brow, and she catch her throat and bite her lip and sniffle and go flying to the bedroom and slam the door, and when I peek through keyhole, I see she hath cambric to her eye, poor creature.

GEORGE ARLISS LOSES RACE FOR FILM -:- NEW FIRST RUN FILMS ON THREE SCREENS

Charles Laughton or Leslie Howard Likely to Play Role of Schoolmaster

By JERRY HOFFMAN

Pinch-Hitting for Louella O. Parsons

(Copyright, 1934, by Universal Service, Inc.)

Los Angeles, June 22—There will be much gnashing of the teeth among other actors and producers when they hear of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's coup. From New York I learn that "Good-bye Mr. Chip," which seems to have created quite a stir in literary circles, has been secured by MGM with Charles Laughton or Leslie Howard as the stars.

George Arliss, I'm told, was among the many who sought to buy James Hilton's latest novel for a picture vehicle. As written, it seems an ideal story for him. It is a character portrait of an English schoolmaster in the ripened stage of life. "Good-bye, Mr. Chip" also may be played in retrospect with a treatment giving equally important roles to both Laughton and Howard. It is certain that Laughton will be compelled to earn more than $100 a week this year as he did last season when he insisted upon carrying out an agreement with the old Vick in London by appearing there.

Chatter in Hollywood

Fifi D'Orsay has decided that her husband should become an actor. Young Bill himself had something to do with the decision. Daily the former medical student is taking lessons from a professional tutor and expects to make his debut shortly in a Little Theater play.

Fifi D'Orsay

"I cannot give up my career," says Fifi, "and Maurice didn't care to be a doctor, anyway. I theenk he will be good and he is 'andsome. And remember Big Boy, we 'ave been marry seex months and no fights."

* * *

The fans themselves, I'm told in all seriousness by the Warners, will select not only their own Anthony Adverse but all the characters in the book. A nationwide contest will be held . . . public will be asked to fill in ballots naming the actor or actress they prefer playing each character.

Dark 'n' handsome Philip Reed is building his Hollywood career carefully. The lad has done nothing but the correct things since he came to Warners under contract. At the right places and on the right nights he is seen with the more dignified local beauties, such as [illegible] Landi and Marion Nixon. It must pay, because Phil has taken a house at Malibu, has jumped from a bit player to a leading man and now will emote opposite Barbara Ellis in "Big Hearted Herbert."

Couple of lines or more: Crauford Kent, staid English actor, goes into the Anna Sten picture "We Live Again" to do, of all things, a whistling number. Kent it appears had whistled on the concert stage at one time. Paul Muni will go Mexican after all. "Border Town" has been rewritten to suit his talents and it will be done before "Black Hell" is made. Francis Lederer will don the knee breeches again to play a pirate of the South Seas. Radio will produce an untitled story by Frederic Arnold Kummer.

Love That Found a Way

Ann Harding and John Boles are featured in "The Life of Vergie Winters," from Louis Bromfield's story, one of the really powerful romantic dramas of the new films, which opens tomorrow at Keith's Memorial Theater.

First in a series of foreign films planned to carry audiences around the world and back again may be seen in "The Bartered Bride" (Die Verkaufte Braut) at the Fine Arts Theater. One of the most melodic and popular of standard operas, "The Bartered Bride" is set against the background of a Bohemian village . . . The music is light and [illegible] the situations comic and Jarmila Novotna, a talented newcomer to American film audiences, is altogether excellent as the prima donna.

"The Queen of the Underworld," a FitzPatrick Traveltalk, a microscopic study of bees, a Walt Disney Silly Symphony, and the current news reel, are the short subjects.

At Pops Tonight

Arthur Fiedler and his Pops Orchestra will present the following program in Symphony Hall tonight:

New Players

Arthur Hohl, recently placed under an extended term contract by Columbia and Seymer Jackson, were this week assigned prominent roles in "The Defense Rests," Jack Holt's next starring vehicle, with Jean Arthur in the feminine lead.

Jack Holt, Fay Wray on Bill at Boston

Although this is the final day that Max Baer will give Senor Satchel-shoes Carnera large doses of right-hand punches at the Keith Boston, Fay Wray and the broad-shouldered Jack Holt should satisfy the customers.

Miss Wray has the title role in "The Countess of Monte Cristo," a light comedy with dialogue which could readily be termed as [illegible]. Risque at moments, [illegible] enjoyable film regardless.

Miss Wray is aided and abetted by Patsy Kelly, a great tap dancer when she was a stooge for Frank Fay, and now a convincing screen actress, and Paul Lukas and Reginald Owen.

The Misses Wray and Kelly [illegible] from the film studio, [illegible] and about. The Messrs. Lukas and Owen are smooth-talking, smooth-acting racketeers. The four of them manage to get into some highly improbable situations until Paul Page, a newspaperman (cheers) comes to the rescue of the heroine and her gal friend.

Jack Holt's picture is entitled "Whirlpool" and it runs the gamut of emotions. As a matter of truthful reporting it runs not only several gamuts but a few furlongs and a couple of parasangs.

Brother Holt, boss of a carnival, is taken to the large house on a charge of manslaughter, after he had knocked no less than a few dozen parties quite dead. [illegible] will be pleased to learn that he is freed which is the [illegible] result with all heroes in the pictures.

But [illegible] most important—he [illegible] his bride (she's not kidding, she's Lila Lee), had [illegible] his daughter had grown up and what do you suppose?

She had fallen in love with a reporter who is a very scrupulous [illegible]. Not an ordinary reporter [illegible] good [illegible] are reporters. So the cops come [illegible] the good old mob steps up to [illegible] jowl to jowl, the shy [illegible] declares himself in [illegible] ex-convict faces death with [illegible] on his person. Woe Is Me.

Mister Holt is assisted by none other than Lila Lee, Jean Arthur, Rita La Roy, Donald Cook, Allen Jenkins and [illegible] the good old joshing. It's a whole-hearted, interesting performance to watch, mostly because of the virility of Holt.

Rothstein Life Story Bared on Screen

By HARRIS MORGAN

Arnold Rothstein, sinister shadow of the underworld whose death is still a mystery, comes vividly to life on the screens of the Paramount and Fenway theaters.

"Now I'll Tell," [illegible] Mrs. Arnold Rothstein [illegible] of a melodramatic [illegible] splendid [illegible] Spencer Tracy [illegible] Helen Twelvetrees and Alice Faye.

Mrs. Rothstein [illegible]

[illegible]

Tracy [illegible] breathes life into the dead body of Rothstein and gives a performance which is as [illegible] convincing.

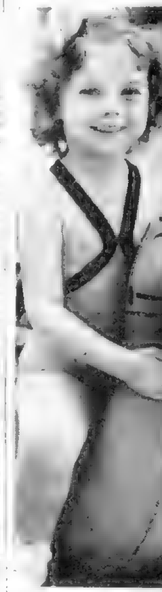
Helen Twelvetrees, the wife, suffers very convincingly through [illegible] and [illegible] of the film, and the blonde Alice Faye, who seems to be going places in the world of make-believe, is a girl friend that anybody [illegible] meeting.

The comparative [illegible] suffed [illegible] Blonde [illegible] and the Messrs. Warren William, Edward Everett Horton and Frank McHugh render a hand [illegible] at every turn [illegible]

Bowdoin's New Bill

"Twentieth Century," with John Barrymore and Carole Lombard, and "The Crime of Helen Stanley," with Ralph Bellamy and Shirley Grey, compose the film fare at the Bowdoin Square Theatre for the balance of the week. The Aristocrats of Dance top an excellent vaudeville bill.

Can't Sink



Shirley Temple in her very latest [illegible]. The child-wonder comes on the screen tomorrow in "Little Miss Marker" at the Modern and Scollay Theaters.

Trouble in Arcady; McManus Worries Bill McKechnie

Referee Donovan's Pencil Slips; Animal Cubs in Sport Light

By AUSTEN LAKE

THE WHISPERING gallery around the National League is saying that Marty McManus, old Red Sox chief and present Braves second baseman, is giving papa Bill McKechnie a bad moment. It started not so long ago when Marty was fixing his feet in the batter's box at Brooklyn, and Bill, who is admittedly a player of hunches, suddenly sent Red Worthington up to pinch hit.

Austen Lake

Marty resented what he seemed to think a slur, and debated the question with a show of heat, resisting Bill's attempt to take his bat away. To make matters more uncomfortable Worthington fanned.

THAT RECALLS the day, several seasons ago, when Cleveland was playing at Fenway Park and Manager Roger Peckinpaugh decided to derrick Wesley Ferrell, now of the Red Sox, from the box. Only Wesley had other ideas and stood stubbornly on the mound for five long minutes, refusing to yield the ball until Peckinpaugh looked around the park for a police officer.

It would have created a new precedent in major league baseball if Peck had called the copper to yank his pitcher. But suddenly Ferrell banged the ball down and strode off, to do penance in solitary for several weeks.

BUCKY HARRIS adopts a pacific attitude toward his players, giving them more "head" than most leaders. Billy Werber, who is the leading base stealer in the American League, has a yen for running and sometimes romps down the line without regard to the usual baseball "percentage."

Not long ago Billy was on second with two men out and one run needed to tie in the ninth. Obviously he was just as valuable on second base as he would have been on third. But suddenly he scuttled off on a lone wolf steal, without getting a sign from Harris. The throw was low and bounced off the White Sox third baseman's glove and into shallow left. So that Billy was on his feet in a flash and scored on a hairline play at the plate.

Harris said nothing at the moment, but since then he has had a fatherly chat in the corner of the locker room, which may have cooled Billy's running fever.

It recalls the time that Judge Fuchs, when managing the Braves in 1928, told Heinie Mueller to go up and bunt and Heinie, instead, lashed out a home run that scored two ahead of him and won the ball game.

"Nice work," said the Judge appreciatively, as Heinie galloped in, smirking and doffing his cap to the multitude. "That will cost you a cool $100," added Fuchs, after shaking the player's hand.

As AN AFTERMATH of the Baer-Carnera battle, one notices that Referee Arthur Donovan, on his individual score sheet, credited Carnera with winning the tenth round. This, you remember, was the round in which Donovan stepped between the fighters with seeming intent to stop the bout after Carnera had been floored twice.

Now Donovan says that he was flustered when he scribbled Carnera's name [illegible] in the interval between the tenth and eleventh rounds. Yet, on the official record, which may not be changed, Donovan gave five rounds to Carnera and five to Baer up to the moment he stopped the fight. One of the judges, Charles Lynch scored Carnera with six rounds and Baer with five.

The total award of rounds by the three officials was fifteen for Carnera, seventeen for Baer, and one even, which indicates how close the technical count was between the two boxers. In fact, on the basis of scoring, Carnera seems to have been winning the fight in the opinion of the officials, up to the tenth round, despite the assorted knockdowns and tumbles he took.

ELMER TRUEMAN, trainer for the Ral Parr stables at Rockingham, was presented with a seven months old baby leopard by Major Ral Parr, a souvenir from that gentleman's hunting tour in Africa recently.

"Tame as a kitten," Trueman was telling his track cronies, "An ideal pet."

Suddenly the "kitten" lashed out with its needle claws and carpet tack teeth and tore Trueman's forearms and chest. Trueman, who is famous as a practical joker and given to such pranks as putting garter snakes in people's coat pockets, hastily boxed

BRAVES SEND BETTS AFTER PIRATES

Pittsburgh, June 22—Proud possessors of fourth place in the National League race, the Boston Braves went out to play the Pirates in the fourth game of their series at Forbes Field this afternoon.

Huck Betts was the Beantown mound nominee, while Pie Traynor was to start either Heinie Meine or Larry French.

The Pirates took the first game of the series—the only game of four they have won since Traynor took charge—but the Braves came back to take both ends of the Thursday double header. The scores were 4-1 and 8-7.

Fred Frankhouse pitched stellar seven-hit ball in the opener to win his 11th game of the season. His mates gathered 10 hits, one a homer by Moore, to make it practically no contest.

The second was closer. In fact it was a nightmare for both managers. McKechnie started Dick Barrett, just recalled from Albany. The Bucs hopped on him for three runs in the first, another in the second and when they started hitting again in the fifth he was derricked. Not an auspicious debut.

The Pirates led until the sixth when Whitney tied the score with a home run, chasing Lee in ahead of him.

Wally Berger, who had made a homer in the third with Jordan on, came through with another in the seventh. Mangum and McManus were on at the time. That gave the Braves a two-run lead, and they managed to stagger in.

The two homers gave Berger a total of four for two days here. All four went over the left field wall.

CUP CANDIDATES REST AT ANCHOR

By Associated Press

Newport, R. I., June 22—Harold S. Vanderbilt's Rainbow was out to win today in the contest for the honor of defending the America's Cup against the latest British challenger, Tom Sopwith's Endeavour.

Rainbow had three victories to her credit to one defeat. Thrice she has beaten Weetamore, Frederick Prince's entry, and once she h[as] known a smashing defeat from the same craft.

The Yale-Harvard crew races interrupted the first of the trials which shall determine which of the three, Yankee, Weetamoe and Rainbow, shall meet Endeavour.

Yankee, for various reasons, has only raced twice. Once she pulled the headboard out of her mainsail. Twice her skipper, Charles Francis Adams, former Secretary of the Navy, was absent, first to attend the marriage of his son and the second time to attend the Harvard commencement exercises.

Today was a period of idleness, so far as the cup candidates were concerned, and Saturday is awaited for a showdown between the three cup aspirants.

Max to Visit Primo

New York, June 22 (INS)—Max Baer, who sent Primo Carnera to the hospital in winning the heavyweight championship, was to tell the giant Italian today that he was sorry he had to do it.

Accompanied by several cronies, the California slugger was to visit Carnera at Columbus hospital, where the former titleholder is recovering from a chipped right ankle bone and torn leg ligament.

Harvard Bows When Tiller Rope Snaps

New London, Conn., June 22—What promised to be a most hotly contested race developed into a fizzle here as the combination crews of Harvard and Yale opened the annual regatta on the Thames.

While the two eights were battling bow to bow at the mile mark, the starboard tiller rope on the Crimson shell parted halfway between the handle and the steering post.

As a result Harvard's rudder became useless. The shell went badly off the course, and Yale waltzed home in the slow time of 11:13.

Harvard had had a lead of a length at the half mile mark. Yale came strongly, and the two crews passed the mile flags simultaneously. Yale was creeping slowly into the lead when the accident occurred.

President Roosevelt watched the race.

Lapham Elected Arena President

Henry G. Lapham has been elected president of the Boston Arena to succeed A. Winsor Weld, who has served in that capacity for the last 15 years.

Business pressure forced Mr. Weld to resign, but he will continue to serve on the board of directors.

George V. Brown is the new vice-president. He has been general manager of the Arena for years.

12 OLYMPIANS IN COAST MEET

By Associated Press

Los Angeles, June 22—On the footpaths and field of Memorial Coliseum where America's athletes wrote Olympic history two years ago, the potential stars of Uncle Sam's 1936 international team sought today to qualify for the national collegiate championships.

Among more than 300 athletes representing 89 colleges and universities in all parts of the country were a dozen members of that great United States Olympic team, ready to take active part in what promised to be wholesale destruction of N. C. A. A. and world records.

Not since the meet was inaugurated in 1921 has such a promising and representative array of track and field talent been collected for this or any other college event, and the chances are the team title will be taken south again by the defending Louisiana state squad.

The question of how seriously Southern California or Stanford will object to the boys from the bayous cutting in on California's big athletic year will be partly decided today in the preliminaries of all the field events except the hammer throw, high jump and pole vault and all races except the mile and two-mile.

HARVARD CREW HALTS TO HAIL ROOSEVELTS

By Bill Corum

New London, Ct., June 22—"Hi, mother"—yelled a sun tanned young giant in the rowing shorts and socks of Harvard, as the Navy yacht Sequoia hove-to off the Crimson camp at Red Top on the Thames.

He did not yell "Hi, father—" although his male parent also was on the bridge of the Sequoia, his hat off, and his face alight with what probably is by now the most famous smile in the world.

Mrs. Roosevelt

Possibly the young giant felt it would be scarcely polite and dignified for him to call 'Hi, father—" at the smiling man some 50 yards away, because, you see, the smiling man chanced to be Franklin Delano Roosevelt, President of the United States.

CRIMSON FAVORITES

The young giant, of course was Franklin Delano Roosevelt, Jr., who at 11 o'clock, Boston time, this morning will pull a Crimson tipped Harvard oar against Harvard's ancient [illegible] Y[ale] in the freshman rac[e] [of the] 72nd annual regatta be[tween] these universities.

The fr[esh]man race was rowed over the upper half of the four mile course and downstream, with Harvard and F. D. Roosevelt Jr. [illegible]

True, Mr. Roosevelt did receive an honorary degree from Yale day before yesterday but you may be quite sure that he was not rooting for the Blue as the two cedar spl[inters] swing into his vision this morning and come pumping toward the finish line.

Blood and memories of college years are thicker and deeper than honorary degrees and like honors, and while he preserved a strictly neutral exterior, as befits his high position, under his yachting flannels the President was like any other proud father watching his son compete and under his breath he no doubt was begging: "Come on, Harvard."

Agua Caliente Co. Declares Dividend

Agua Caliente, Mex., June 22 (INS)—A dividend of 25 cents a share o[n] the capital stock was declared today by the board of directors of the Agua Caliente Company. A similar dividend was declared in February. The company operates a hotel, casino and golf course here.

Harvard and Yale Elect Captains

New Haven, June 22—At the close of their annual series, which they split, Harvard and Yale varsity nines elected captains for 1935. Yale, winner of the second game, 2 to 0, named Preston Leo Woodlock of Brookline, Mass. He is a shortstop. Harvard elected young Dick Maguire of East Boston, former Boston Latin star. Maguire is a catcher and will make the trip to Japan with the Crimson in August.

President Sees Son Pull Losing Oar in Frosh Race

is expected to sweep the river clean. The big Blue boat has been installed a 2-1 favorite over the Crimson, and with plenty of power from stem to stern, may make [it a] blue day indeed for Harva[rd].

It was a triumphant day for [the] President, regardless of wh[ich] crews won, for his own graduation from Harvard, many years ago, was topped earlier this week by an honorary degree from Yale, bringing him into the Eli fold just in time to share the hilarity of the double victory, preliminary to the four-mile Varsity classic this evening.

While the President failed to see his big son's crew win, he did see his son row a terrific race, under perfect weather conditions. Billowing over his oar at No. 6, Franklin D. Jr., was the powerhouse of the Crimson shell, and his father, his battered white fishing hat atop his head, waved him on excitedly from the Dodger III referee's boat that followed a few short lengths back of the shells.

SITS QUIETLY

The President seemed to be having a marvelous time, though he sat far quieter in a folding chair almost on the prow of the launch as the Yale junior varsity broke Harvard's streak of two straight in this race in 1932 and 1933.

President Roosevelt had no chance to hail his son or speak with him. The Harvard freshman shell was jumped by Yale at the start, pulled up almost on even terms at the half mile, slipped a length back at the mile, cut the lead to half a length again in the third half mile, and then faltered in the final drive as the Eli yearlings staged a magnificent spurt.

Young Roosevelt slumped ove[r] his oar, rowed completely out, as the Harvard shell crossed the finish line but after resting a few [illegible] Thames and splashed his own face with w[ater], then doused the fe[llow] ahead of him and became again just one of eight oarsmen in a boat.

The Fr[esh]m[en] [illegible] the J[ayvees] [illegible] and as [the] [illegible] passe[d] their drifting craft, young Roosevelt was waving and cheering Harvard on harder than any of his mates.

DRESSED FOR ANYTHING

The President, up early aboard the naval yacht Sequoia that brought him here yesterday after the commencement exercises at New Haven earlier in the week, had a grand time for himself.

He was dressed for anything in his battered fishing hat, a grayish-brown tweed coat and tan slacks, and he was as busy as a kid at his first circus.

He waved to both crews as they went to the start for each race, and he shifted from side to side of the foredeck in his anxiety to get a better view as the crews came down the river in the two preliminary races of the biggest Harvard-Yale regatta day in New London history.

As soon as the races were over, President Roosevelt returned to the Sequoia, which was moored in a nest of protective coast guard vessels just off the submarine base, finish line for the morning events.

The President's [illegible] overshadowed [illegible] though the throng [illegible] train, the boat[illegible] course, alternated between [illegible] to pick him out with [illegible] referee's boat and watching the work of his son in the Harvard shell. The referee's boat flew the President's flag, four white stars and an eagle on a field of blue.

OFFICIAL TIMES

The official times were announced as follows:

Freshman race, Yale, 9 minutes 47 3-5 seconds. Harvard, 9:51.

Junior varsity, Yale, 9:40 1-5; Harvard, 9:48 3-5.

Yale's freshman crew slowly paddled toward the starting line at 9:45 a. m. daylight time.

HARVARD LEADS

Harvard's yearlings broke aw[ay] to a brisk start and held a lead of a few feet after the first 50 strokes. Harvard wa[s] rowing at a much faster beat and not quite so smoothly as the Elis.

Going toward the half mile there was little or nothing to choose between the two. Harvard had dropped its beat a trifle and was rowing more smoothly now although the Crimson was still doing considerable splashing.

They shot past the half mile [on] even terms and Yale, hitting up it[s] stroke, then shot to the front though by a marg[in] [o]f not more than inches.

[illegible] fast clip, Yal[e] [illegible]

Harvard h[it] up its beat once more and p[illegible] with a half-mile to go. The Crimson's lead was half a l[ength] [illegible] stage.

YALE IN SPRINT

Down the home stretch, the Crimson beat went higher and higher and the Harvard shell steadily pulled away from the Blue.

Yale was not through, however, and the Elis spurted beautifully, pulled up even in one mad dash and then went to the front.

Smoothly and powerfully they shot down the last mile and it still was anybody's race.

Three quarters of a mile from the st[illegible] [illegible] rowing almost as on[e]. [Th]e Yale went out and won [illegible]

[illegible] boats were [illegible] at 9:20 and [illegible]

They were away to a slow start with Yale taking a lead in the [first] few strokes. The Elis were [illegible] lower beat, splashing more but held their slight advantage in the face of Harvard's comparatively high stroke.

ALL EVEN

With a quarter mile covered, Harvard had pulled up even. The Crimson was rowing much more smoothly than the splashing Elis.

At the half mile Harvard's shell had pushed to the fore. It looked like another ding dong struggle, however, as Yale finally got going, made up its deficit in a few short seconds and regained the end, passing the three-quarter mile mark.

A mile from home, Yale's Jayvees favored in the race, still held onto a slim advantage. Yale's lead was better than a length as the two shells dashed toward the finish line. With 20 yards to go Yale was leading by a full length. Harvard hit its beat, desperately, but failed to make any of its deficit and Yale kept forging ahead to finally win by 3 lengths.

Dempsey Favors Primo as Baer's Opponent
Hello Rockingham

Big Meet Opens
Wilson and Egan Cover for American

By Jack Conway

SPEAKING OF news: Primo Carnera will be Max Baer's opponent if the champion defends his title in September for the New York Garden. Jack Dempsey has told Ancil Hoffman he figures Baer can knock out Carnera inside of three rounds if the title holder is in perfect condition.

BAER DID a bit of coasting when he got tired in his recent winning surge. Dempsey contends that if Baer gave more attention to his training he could let his punches blaze with all their fury for four rounds, and that no heavyweight in the world could stand up in front of him.

Mr. Boston

I QUITE agree with Dempsey. Baer's only weakness in his recent skirmish with Primo was a tendency to get tired after he made a stout hearted effort to score a knockout.

IF BAER had fought two or three times between his bout with Max Schmeling and his tussle with Carnera he would have won the title in the second round. I never could understand why Baer did not keep more active in the ring, as he has the punch to knock out the average run of heavyweights in a round or two.

Two Sure Winners

TWO SURE winners: Dave Wilson, expert race picker for the Boston Evening American, and Dave Egan, whose ability to write sent in an interesting way, will put you right in the grandstand at Rockingham Park.

PAUL BOWSER leaves today to see Jim Londos and Jim Browning put the finishing touches to their training for their finish bout at the Garden Bowl on Long Island, N. Y., on next Monday night. Browning is recognized as world champion in New York state.

THAT RULING does not go in Massachusetts where Ed Don George is considered the king of the grapplers.

Londos Opposes Lutze

REGARDLESS of the result of his tussle with Browning, Londos will tackle Nick Lutze in a finish contest at the Boston Garden a week from tonight. This show will be staged for the benefit of the Ahepa Lodge. Every member of this organization believes Londos can lick any heavyweight in the world.

HENRI DeGlane, former world champion, will have Charley Strack as an opponent in the semi final.

F. T. better known as the Greek Tiger, has been signed to meet Al Gladysz, New Hampshire middleweight champion, in a ten-round bout at Manchester, N. H. on Monday night. Jimmy Press has Karl Pieton and Johnny (Kid) Adams trading blows in the semifinal.

THERE WILL be another outdoor wrestling show at the Revere Cycle Track next Monday night. Fred Bruno of New York will oppose Yankee Hall of Montreal in the feature event. Lloyd Stewart and Mike Tellegen will collide in the semifinal.

BERMUDA OCEAN RACE TO START SUNDAY

THIRTY YACHTS TO TRY DEEP SEA GRIND

By E. B. Schriftgiesser

The most difficult test of the yachting season starts Sunday from New London. More than 600 miles of open ocean stretches ahead of the 30 yachts which hoist sail day after tomorrow in the biennial Bermuda race.

Hard driving, skillful navigation and cast iron stomachs are required of the crew that braves the [illegible] deep sea course.

Three classes of boats will compete in this year's race. Best from in Class A craft which rate 40 feet or more in length. Class B, for the smaller boats [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] pected.

Boston yachts took both first prizes in the 1930 Bermuda race, when John Alden sailed the Malabar X in to a first place in Class A and the Morse boys in Grenadier won in Class B.

Malabar X has since been sold to the Great Lakes and will not [illegible] this year, but Henry and Sherman Morss have their 46-foot schooner ready for an attempt to repeat.

All - American Semifinal

London, June 22.—An all American semi final round was on the [illegible] in the Queen's club tournament today.

George Lott was to meet Frank Shields and Sidney Wood was to meet Lester Stoefen. All four are members of the U. S. Davis cup squad.

Max Spends Early Winnings on First Girl

Didn't Know What Fun a Fellow Could Have

There's never been another fighter like dynamic, handsome, young Max Baer, the new world's heavyweight champion. Famous playboy, center of a dozen torrid romances, Maxie continues today the story of his "Life and Loves." Already victor over three cowboys and a painter in his early fighting days, Max describes today how he used his early winnings to give the girls a treat especially his first girl."

CHAPTER 5

When Lorimer heard about McAllister's interest in me, and learned that I wasn't 21, and not under contract, he told me he would give me a Cord automobile if I could influence my father to sign me to him in a guardian contract. That was a cinch. My father signed, I got the car and Lorimer at once told McAllister he needn't box with me any more.

In Lorimer's [illegible] against me later he claimed that he purchased the auto for me out of my funds at my request.

Ham wasn't so hot as a manager, not at first. He couldn't get me a fight every night. However, he dated me up about ten days later with Sailor Leeds for a socking party in Stockton, and I put the Sailor to sleep in the first. The payoff for that was $60, of which Ham Lorimer took $20, leaving me $40. And that was the most money of my own that I had handled up to that time.

GETS $100 FOR A FIGHT

Those Stockton fans recognized talent when they saw it, and yelled for me to give them another look. The promoter there matched me with Al Ledford and did he surprise me. Al had been around plenty and knew a lot and he [illegible] [illegible] swings and plastered me a [illegible] the first round. [illegible] a cyclone with the breeze [illegible] up when I missed him.

[illegible]

He [illegible] $100 for [illegible] and I [illegible] $ [illegible]. And [illegible]

[illegible] in the paper and people [illegible]. But I wasn't [illegible] I knew I was good. I [illegible] so good [illegible] when I met Olive [illegible] [illegible] I didn't [illegible]

A few [illegible] it was different. I [illegible] $250,000 [illegible]

Olive [illegible] I charmed around and we had lots of fun. She was my first girl and until then I hadn't an idea of what fun a fellow could have with money and a girl. Of course owing to the fact that Olive was my first girl and me brimming with sweet words, I sure spent plenty of them on Olive, which seems to have been a little error.

SUES FOR $250,000

After I got to [illegible] around California and not seeing much of Olive, I [illegible] to write and that's how her error [illegible] I should have telephoned.

Anyway, after I was married to Dorothy Dunbar [illegible] Olive up and sues me for $250,000, and that gives you an idea of what a [illegible] must have been even during my first affair. Just a 'natural,' that's all. Romeo was good so the books say, and John Gilbert had a rep, and Ramon Novarro, too. And Valentino was supposed to be the old Chief bean kid himself.

But when [illegible] loved and lost [illegible] they [illegible] [illegible]. The girls just said, "Oh well," or something like that, and called it a forgotten incident. But with me, it was different. $250,000 worth.

And just recently a lady I don't even remember meeting hopped in to court and she also has sued me for $250,000 worth of lost love.

Girls, I must be good!

Say, where was I on the subject of my fistic career before I got talking about girls? That's the way it is with girls—they dazzle you, like suddenly walking into the glare of a spotlight.

Let's see now. Oh yes. I was matched for a fourth fight. That dude's name was "Tillie" Taverna. Imagine me the great big, strong man being sent up against a 'Tillie'? A guy oughtn't to hit a 'Tillie'! But, there was money in it—$113 for the Baer-Lorimer Company.

In the second "Tillie" made an error. He thought I was so wild that I never would be able to [illegible] Came in close he did. I tossed a roundhouse curve, his left eye got in the way, and there was no more entertainment for the customers that evening.

When I hit 'em anywhere above the neck those days with my whole frame in the swing it used to be "good night, all."

WANTED ACTION

Al Ledford was mumbling around about a lucky wild swing, said he would be very much obliged if he could have another meeting with me. I let out a yell to Ham to go get him. And Al was obliged—but [illegible] I handed him his hypo[illegible] the second and the next [illegible] I was telling how good I was. I made a crack that anybody I whipped once I could whip [illegible] thereafter.

Then who should come snorting along and saying I was a loud-talking fathead but Chief Cariboo. He got his chance and I shook him loose from his head feathers with one punch.

"Tillie" Taverna I heard was wishing to meet me again. He didn't believe I could repeat against him.

"Go get him," I told Ham, "and then I'll get him."

Ham got "Tillie" and then I got Tillie in the second.

Business was getting better and better. I was getting plenty of [illegible] through 1929 but not enough to suit me. I was fight crazy. I'd have fought every night twice a night if Ham could have supplied [illegible]

I stopped George Carroll in less than a round, took two four round decisions from the clever Benny Hill, had him down three times but he had rubber in him. I outscored Natty Brown in six. Natty was a good ringman then. I exploded some dynamite on Alec Rowe's chin in the first, did the same thing with Frank Reyenski, and sheared the beard of Chief Shanghai in two.

I mixed it with Tony Fuente, a stylish fellow who was supposed to know how to keep covered [illegible] [illegible] he knew it he didn't show it because I pitched a right hand direct from the floor and that was hail and farewell for Tony.

During 1929—I still was only 20. I had mixed in 16 fights, scoring 12 knockouts, winning three decisions, and I blew the other on a foul. Was I good? Well, the sports writers in and around Oakland and the experts said I was the most horrible specimen of boxer they ever looked at and a few kept predicting I'd get my brains knocked out sooner or later because I had no defense and only used my left hand for hitching up my tights.

Some of the others, the wise crackers, merely said I'd get my head knocked off. They wouldn't credit me with brains.

But I wasn't worried. I was good. That voice inside kept telling me that. And every time I'd look at the records I knew the voice was okay and that the other guys were nutty—not me.

They razzed me, and I razzed them. I kept yelling for Dempsey, Tunney, Schmeling, Sharkey, all the big shots retired or active—and did I get publicity!

Baseball Tips, No. 14

By Austen Lake

Left handed batters always have a head start in going down to first base over the right hand swinger. The left hander swings directly into his stride toward the base and has the added advantage of being four feet closer to that station from a standing start. The right hander on the other hand swings away from the base, is off balance and cannot make as fast a getaway. In the course of a season the left-handed batter will beat out many an infield hit that is lost to the right hander of equal batting ability.

Also there are comparatively few left handed pitchers in the game, giving the left handed batter the greater advantage of hitting against a larger proportion of right hand hurlers, and being able to see more of the ball's approach.

RED SOX GAIN ON YANKS BUT DROP TO 5TH

By Joe Cashman

Robert Moses Grove will try to inaugurate another Red Sox win streak in the fourth game of the series with the White Sox this afternoon. Lefty started the recent five-game victory surge by whipping the Browns last Sunday though he didn't finish.

The even split knocked the Sox back into fifth place but enabled them to pick up a half game on the league leading Yankees beaten by the Indians who regained fourth place.

Carl Reynolds is enjoying a much needed rest. His left leg has been sore and stiff since Sunday's doubleheader.

Al Simmons isn't hustling for the White Sox the way he did for the Athletics. He doesn't run half way to first when he hits infield grounders.

With most of the carrying only two catchers, the White Sox have [illegible] Muddy Ruel [illegible] receivers [illegible] the bulk of the catching [illegible] Fenway roster.

Eddie Morgan missed by the breadth of a whisker being "beaned" for the second time this week when a Wyatt pitch knocked his cap off in the fourth inning of the nightcap.

Two-Day Tourney Opens—Sunapee Play Starts

By Bill Grimes

Professionals have considerable to do with the success of small clubs. For instance, Les Cotter made Bear Hill, Johnny Ford has been a great asset to Blue Hill, Jack Curley put Stoney Brae on the golf map. Trapelo has jumped into popularity since signing Bill Duffy and Jim Lally is doing fine job at Winthrop.

Dressed in the best golfing attire [illegible] Lally is greeting the open tournament players today at the Winthrop Golf Club.

During the two-day M. G. A. tournament at Winthrop the field will be divided into three classes with two gross prizes and one net offered for competitors in Class A and one gross and two nets in other divisions.

A field of 64 teams were at it hammer and tongs today at the Lake Sunapee Country Club, where some of the strongest four ball combinations in New England are battling to remove Emory P. Stratton and C. Russ Todd from the thrown.

Trapelo Golf Club is well on its way to a new high in attendance for mid-week open tournaments. During the first day of the open a large field checked in with Johnny Corcoran and Bill Duffy. Judging from the number of starting times reserved for today, the total will top the 150 mark.

Unless he is accompanied by a road pilot, it's better than an even bet that Freddie winds up in the Berkshires.

The South Shore Women's Golf League gets underway today, with a handicap medal play tournament, at the South Shore Country Club. Next week will mark the opening of the team match season, and the South Shore Women's championship will be played at the Cohasset Country Club, the week of August 11.

Don Kellett's Family Rabid N. L. Fans

By Joe Cashman

The Red Sox have picked up a husky son of the most rabid National League family in captivity in Don Kellet, blue-eyed, flaming-haired shortstop from University of Pennsylvania.

Don was born and reared in Brooklyn where, next to the Giants, American Leaguers are the lowest form of animal life. He still makes his home along the banks of the Gowanus. But is momentarily expecting word that the dome has been bombed now that he has cast his lot with the Fenway flock.

Don, however, has a reasonable alibi for his treason. He worked out with the Dodgers during his early days in college and has been playing right under their noses on Flatbush [illegible] for years without ever getting a nod from the front office of Ebbets Field.

SHUNS PRO FOOTBALL

He feels this [illegible] that he took his [illegible] out with the Giants. He failed to impress on his first appearance at the Polo Grounds and never returned.

By this time he had progressed far enough in his business course at Penn to learn that it's a grave financial mistake to offer one's services gratis.

So thereafter he kept away from big league nibbles until he received his degree and the Sox outbid [illegible] for him.

Don was the captain of the Red and Blue [illegible] spring and left the campus [illegible] of the Quaker institution with three letters each in baseball, football and basketball.

But it's baseball only for him from now on. He has received most tempting offers to play pro football and basketball but has turned them all down.

"Anybody with a future in the majors is daffy to engage in any other sport," he opines.

RIVAL SOX SPLIT

Don joined the Sox just before the Thursday doubleheader along with Weymouth Joe Mulligan, Holy Cross ace, who spent a good part of the afternoon warming up in the bullpen. The two had met during their undergraduate days though they had never been rivals.

The coming of the collegians didn't prove so lucky, the Sox dropping the nightcap after winning their fifth game in a row in the opener. But the chaps from the campus did succeed in bringing a little sanity back to the Fens.

There wasn't a pitching substitution on either side until the ninth inning of the second game, and each tilt was completed in less than two hours.

Flashing his best form of the season, Henry Johnson went the distance to outpitch Ted Lyons and gain a 6-3 decision in the opener. Whitlow Wyatt blanked the Harrismen until the eighth inning as "Dusty" Rhodes and Johnny Welch were suffering a 4-1 setback.

JORDAN MARSH, HENNIGANS IN DUEL

By Bob Ahearn

Jordan Marsh and Hennigans clash at Dorchester Town Field tonight in the highlight of the Boston Park League schedule. Both clubs are staging a hectic battle for the Western division leadership with the former out in front by a small percentage.

Chancy Lord will be Dick Edwards' choice for the pitching assignment for Jordans while either Fahey or Callahan will be Barney McDermott's nomination.

At Fallon Field, Billy Tompkins and his Charlestown nine cross bats with the Roslindale Twi. Delaney, stellar moundsman, will be on the slab for the Bunker Hill boys, while Herb Thormahlen will pitch for Walker's club.

Parmont Club visits Marcella street to play the Madders and St. Augustine's play host to the Fox Hill [illegible].

Close to 1,000 fans turned out for the Reynolds-Arlington night game at the Malden Stadium. Roger Baker's club put out Arlington 13 to 12. The attendance figure is a fair indication of the advantage of night ball played under [illegible].

SCORE GARLAND OLYMPICS REPORT

By International News Service

New York, June 22.—The attitude of Colonel William May Garland, member of the International Olympic committee regarding the good faith of Germany's promise that Jews be allowed to participate in the Olympic games there is sharply criticized in a statement issued here by Bernard S. Deutsch, president of the American Jewish Congress.

"Is the International Olympic committee ready to ignore the last year's events in Germany?" the statement asked. "The Aryan law, which bars Jews from every field of endeavor in Germany, is still the basic law of the land."

Despite this, the statement followed declarations made by Colonel Garland upon his arrival here yesterday from a committee meeting in Athens that Germany has satisfied the committee that it is living up to its solemn pledge not to discriminate against any Jewish athletes.

En route to his home in Los Angeles, Col. Garland plans to stop off in Chicago to visit Avery Brundage, president of the American Olympic Committee, recently empowered by that organization to accept or reject the invitation to the games at Berlin.

WILSON PICKS SPRINGSTEEL TO WIN ROCKINGHAM FEATURE

HAPPY SCOT IS FORM PLAYERS' BEST BET

... Handicap ... and one-sixteenth feature on the opening card here tomorrow.

... Springsteel ... Monel and Round Table for the feature but the former will carry the ... of his ropes. Both Monel and Round Table are doubtful starters and will be used chiefly to ... the pace providing they do go postward.

Springsteel, generally rated the best of the handicap performers in ... this season, has been quartered at the course for over a week and will be familiar with the track. Clockers who have watched him in his morning gallops, declare that he was never better. The speedy son of Sir Greysteel breezed five furlongs in 1:02 2-5 this morning as a final ...

Happy Scot, a recent arrival from New York, shapes up as the day's safest wagering proposition. He will parade postward in the first race, a five and one-half furlong dash.

HAPPY SCOT, LUCK IN, MORHEART

FIRST RACE—$800, claiming, ... five and one-half furlongs: ... Oak 97, Prince Abbott 112, ... 109, ... King 102, Treadbar ... 101, Fred Almy 117, ... Foam 101, Oswego Princess 108, xMerry ... 103, ... Heart 103, Appomattox ...

Also eligible: ... 97, Chimney Top ... 103, xWater... 102 ...

HAPPY SCOT be... effort would get the form players off on the right foot in this affair. The speedy son of Scotch was a topnotch sprinter a few seasons back. On several occasions in New York he flashed a high turn of speed with better ones. LUCK IN looms as the main danger, but she is first on the eligible list and may not get a chance to start. The hunting filly was a frequent winner in Maryland this spring. MORHEART comes from Canada with a fair record and must be given some sort of a chance.

The Heathen, Distribute, Predict

SECOND RACE—$600, claiming, three-year-olds and up, six furlongs: xFlashing Thru 108, xPolly C 96, xEmployment 96, xPredict 113, Periodical 113, Retribution 1..., xTechnocrat 101, Front 108, Distribute 1..., ... 105, xSpace 108, ... 113.

Also eligible: xThe Heathen 108, ... 1..., Jaz Ace 113, xSanterno 11..., ... Tempest 106, xBe Off 98.

If THE HEATHEN gets off the eligible list and parade postward, he would make every pole of this affair a winning one. The one-time handicap star is trained by Hirsch Jacobs, the popular New Yorker, and is reported to be in the "proverbial pink." DISTRIBUTE won several heats like this in Canada, and may take it all providing the top one fails to start. PREDICT has a high turn of speed and is fit and ready.

Kings Pleasure, Hilise, Governor Sholtz

THIRD RACE—$1,000, ... The Record Purse, two-year-olds, five furlongs: French Star 1..., Justa Jones 108, Lady Laura 1..., Rosie Joe 103, Kings Pleasure 1..., Hank Heyday 103, Grandpas Boy 103, xBy Straight ..., Hilise 1..., Gov. Sholtz 1..., Yeoman 103, Candy Prince 108.

Also eligible: Sun Antioch 103, Morning May 103, xStar Chase 100, xMerryland Farm.

KINGS PLEASURE was a high class juvenile around New York. The Happy Time colt has been working well over this oval and should prove hard to down. Steve Judge will be sending a mighty fit thoroughbred postward in HILISE and he should have little trouble in sharing the place award. However, I don't think him capable of drubbing the top one. GOVERNOR SHOLTZ, which formerly ran as Tortess, was an odds on favorite over the top one in their last meeting in New York, but he was badly beaten off. He has changed hands since that effort and may be on the improve.

STAR PORTER, DARK HOPE, HIGH GLEE

FOURTH RACE—$1200, The Roseben Handicap, three-year-olds and up, five-eighths mile: Night Sprite 112, Chinese Empress 100, aW...rob 93, Dark Hope 117, aCharacter 105, Desert Call 111, Broad Lights 105, Pana Franka 90, Khamseen 100, Star Porter 105, My Dandy 95, Black Hand 95, High Glee 111, Flying Sailor 112, Universe 112.

a... Stable entry.

This is a mighty tough spot to go looking for a winner. I believe that the start has a lot to do with affairs of this kind, so I'm going to string along with STAR PORTER, a proverbial bulet away from the barrier. Trainer Elmer Trueman tells me the speedy son of The Porter is fit and should prove hard to down. DARK HOPE, if saved for this event, should prove the most dangerous of the contenders. The Traumer colt drubbed the best at Detroit before shipping here. HIGH GLEE is the class of the race and will likely come up favorite. I may have him under rated.

Springsteel, Mr Khayyam, Tick On

FIFTH RACE—$10,000 added, The Granite State Handicap, three-year-olds and up, one mile and a sixteenth: Flaming Mamie 92, aSunador 10..., bRound Table 92, R... 1..., ... Fire 96, Mr Khayyam 121, Tick On 119, Dark Hope 110, ... 9..., Ramb... 101, b Monel 102, aDark Winter 11..., cSpringsteel 107, Barada 107, ... 9...

aW S K... entry.

bS W Labrot entry.

cMr and Mrs A A Baroni entry.

SPRINGSTEEL is in this event under the light impost of 107 pounds and in his present good condition he should cop the verdict. MR. KHAYYAM, the top weight with 121 pounds, has completed a fair record this season. On one occasion in New York he placed to the mighty Equipoise and received top honors when "Ekky" was disqualified. He may prove a hard nut for the top one crack if he favors this strip. TICK ON won several nice conditions affairs this season and may take it all.

OUTBOUND, BELOW COST, HIGH SOCKS

SIXTH RACE—$600, claiming, three-year-olds and up, one mile and a sixteenth: Dornoch 114, Lone Hand 113, xFa... 113, xMiss Glace 99, Tazewe... 114, xOut Bound 113, xPlumage 1..., xMathias 10..., High Socks 111, Plucky Lady 109, xGabbo 109, Manager Bill 108.

Also eligible: xBelow Cost 113.

OUTBOUND just galloped to a field of this sort in his last outing in New York. He changed hands in that race, but that should not stop him from winning this affair. BELOW COST is a steady going plater and has been racing well. HIGH SOCKS has been freshened up since his Maryland but the work tab shows him fit and ready.

Source Circle, Vested Power, Miss Morocco

SEVENTH RACE—$1000, claiming, three-year-olds and up, one mile: Source Circle 97, Allenfern 111, xManya 108, xLeonie 92, xMiss Morocco 108, Vested Power 111.

SOURCE CIRCLE appears to be well suited by the conditions of this affair. The J. B. Belk owned filly has been drubbing better ones in her Maryland and New York races. VESTED POWER failed to show much in his New York races but he has been working impressively since arriving here. He may like this strip. MISS MOROCCO met with only fair success in Canada, but in Maryland this spring, she accounted for several purses.

Butterbeans, Gallic, Steelhead

EIGHTH RACE—$800, claiming, three-year-olds and up, one mile and a sixteenth: xRhod... ..., Grand Hopes 113, xSouthard 1..., xAxentes 108, Butterbeans 1..., xSteel Head 99, xModern Ace 108, Ukraine 108, xGa... 108.

First race 2:30 D. S. T.

xApprentice allowance.

BUTTERBEANS must be given the top figures here, although she has been away since Maryland. This field would have been easy for her then. If ready, she should tow rope this sort of company. GALLIC'S recent efforts in New York were very good and she looms next best. STEELHEAD has better than a fighting chance.

Brady Reports Khayam Ready for Classic

By Dave Wilson

Rockingham Park, Salem, N. H., June 22.—Matt Brady, trainer of the Catawba stable, today denied reports that his good handicap racer Mr. Khayyam had been ailing.

Brady stated that several two year olds in his stable had been taken sick in New York, but that Mr. Khayyam was never in better health and would be a sure starter in the $10,000 added Granite State Handicap, mile and one-sixteenth feature of the opening day's program here tomorrow.

General Manager Lou Smith is confident that his association will play host to at least 25,000 fans tomorrow. Smith bases his prediction on the fact that New England has not had racing with legalized betting for almost nine months together with the fact that racing Secretary Jim Monroe has arranged a sparkling program.

Owner J. B. Belk has engaged F. Marschek to pilot his Flaming Mamie in tomorrow's feature.

C. C. Smithson, who has a large stable ..., ... was injured in an ... accident ... will be confined ... W... D. C. hospital.

Bill Irvine, trainer of the S. W. Labrot Stable, sired Round Table and Springsteel, candidates for tomorrow's feature, five furlongs in 1:02 2-5 this morning. Monel, another of his charges, worked the same distance in 1:03 4-5.

George Hamilton's Loughport succumbed to shipping fever this morning. The colt was taken sick en route from Charleston, W. Va.

Tick On, a candidate for the Granite, arrived early this morning with others of the E. R. Bradley stable. Jockey Don Meade will come on from New York tonight to ride him.

Whitey Dauenhauer has taken over the book of (Smoky) Saunders. According to Dauenhauer, Saunders can do 100 pounds and he is under contract to Bill Irvine.

Trainer Hirsh Jacobs, who topped the list of winning trainers last season with 116 victories, is well on his way towards duplicating the feat. To date he has saddled 67 winners.

Dave Withers, who formerly engaged for Jockey Mack Garner, arrived this morning from New York with Pete Walls, who will have the leg up on Sunador in tomorrow's feature.

Pari-Mutuel Manager Mortimer M. Mahoney has his crack crew out for another ... workout this morning.

Eddie Yowell, who arrived from Charlestown yesterday, reports that he will lose his apprentice allowance next Saturday. Yowell is under contract to Bill Merion.

Francis Weir, who led the Charlestown colony with 25 victories, has turned over his book to Church Frost. Incidentally Weir piloted Trycook, $809 shot, to victory at Charlestown.

Louis Feustel, who trained Man O'War, is here with several racers.

OFFER $50,000 FOR CAVALCADE MATCH RACE

Chicago, June 22 (INS).—Cavalcade, champion three-year-old of America, was quartered today at Arlington awaiting further conquests. With seven stablemates, Mrs. Dodge Sloane's champion arrived from Detroit, scene of his victory in the $25,000 Derby last week.

Three big stakes races at Arlington attracted Cavalcade. These include the classic on July 14.

Los Angeles, June 22 (INS).—William P. Kyne, sportsman, today offered $50,000 for a match race among Equipoise, Cavalcade and Sun Beau this fall at Bay Meadows, the new track he is building near San Mateo, Cal. The offer is in addition to a $25,000 handicap previously scheduled by Kyne.

ZIMBAR FACES SCHAEFFER

Charlie Gordon today announced that Zimbar, the gorilla man of Australia, has been signed to meet Pat Schaeffer in Mechanics Building, next Tuesday night in the semi-final bout. Zimbar has appeared in Mechanics Building once before and his tremendous strength made a big impression with the wrestling fans.

The main bout will bring together Paul Adams, middleweight champion, versus Gil La Cross of Nova Scotia. La Cross is one of the toughest middleweight wrestlers ever to be seen in Boston.

Last week he almost stole the show from Germaine and that is quite an accomplishment. Germaine will clash with Papalino in another bout.

What the Stars Did

Roy Johnson, Red Sox—Rapped Chicago pitching for five hits in double-header, driving in three runs.

Dizzy Dean, Cardinals—Struck out seven in pitching seven-hit game against Dodgers.

Buddy Myer, Senators—His triple accounted for three of five runs in rally that beat Tigers.

Hal Lee, Braves—Made two hits in each game of double-header against Pirates.

Billy Knickerbocker, Indians—Led assault on Yankee pitching with four hits and three runs.

Lon Warneke and Bill Jurges, Cubs—Former blanked Giants with four hits, latter drove in three with homer.

Bob Johnson, Athletics—Made four hits, including 21st homer, in two games against Browns.

Tony Freitas, Reds—Gave seven hits in pitching Reds to 4-1 victory over Phillies.

SHIELDS WHIPS LOTT, 6-3, 6-4

London, June 22—Frank Shields, ranking United States player and No. 1 on the United States Davis Cup team, defeated his team-mate, George M. Lott, Jr., 6—3, 6—4 in the all-American semi-final round of the Queens Club tennis tournament.

Tomorrow he will meet the winner of the other semi-final between Lester Stoefen and Sidney B. Wood, Jr., the other two members of the cup team, for the title shared last year by Ellsworth Vines, Jr., and Stoefen when rain prevented their final meeting.

Terry and Cronin All-Star Managers

New York, June 22.—Instead of Bill McKechnie of the Braves and Connie Mack of the A's managing the National and American league all-star teams in the inter-league game July 10 at the Polo Grounds, it will be Bill Terry of the Giants and Joe Cronin of the Senators.

It was thought that McKechnie and Mack would be given the ... seniority privilege, both ... the managerial patriarchs of their respective leagues.

Neither Terry nor Cronin managed a club until last year, yet ... on their first year out and it looks very much as though they were going to repeat again this season.

Mack last year managed the American League team which defeated the National Leaguers, led by John McGraw, 4-2.

ANOTHER ANIMAL yarn comes from Westboro, where members of the golf club, mysteriously, have been losing golf balls in wholesale quantities at the third hole. Noah Nason solved the case the other day by hiding in a nearby clump of trees. After a long wait, he saw a baby fox scurry out of a rock pile and snatch up a ball that had just been played to the edge of the green.

Searching the rock pile, Nason found a mother fox and four babies with a fine collection of Cro-Flites, Silver Kings, and Hole-Hi's, many of them initialed. The collection was put on display at the clubhouse, where the members were called to identify their property. Nason took charge of the mamma fox and her infants.

We brought "a Bit of Old England" over here to give you real London Dry gin at American prices!

World travelers will tell you that there is no gin, anywhere, as delicious as London gin. The English, they say, give gin a satin smoothness . . . a subtle bouquet . . . that no one else has ever matched. And if you, sir, have ever tasted real London Dry gin we believe you'll quickly agree.

With Repeal, the House of Seagram decided to bring you London gin at American prices. But how could that be done? Import it from England? That meant import duties.

But Seagram's found a way!

Across the Atlantic Seagram's moved—not only a formula centuries old—not only English distilling skill—but a gin distillery as well!

Today Seagram—and Seagram only—can bring you real London Dry gin at American prices.

Today may we suggest that you say "Seagram's," and get London Dry gin? Seagram's real London Dry gin costs little more than "just gin." Yet when you serve long, cool summer drinks made with Seagram's, you'll hear a chorus of praise from your friends. You'll quickly taste the difference yourself. From now on . . .

"Just that much better"

Say Seagram's and be sure

Investment Trusts Are Diversifying the Portfolios

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

H. R. Hardwick

Directing the destiny of investment funds in this day and age is no sinecure. A large Boston trust is reported to have diversified its investment among a most contradictory list of securities. For the first time in three years the trustees have made a commitment in governments. Inflation stocks meanwhile continue to hold a prominent place in the trusts portfolio. Cash, which previously was held to nominal amounts, is being allowed to pile up, while the trustees ponder the wisdom of purchasing industrial issues on the theory profits, and consequently dividends will not reach important totals in the next few years.

Notes: The management noted above as [illegible] opposed but acknowledged economic and stock market leaders. Latest list of better than average yielding issues is smaller. Including Eastman Kodak National Power & Light Proctor & Gamble and Dome Mines. Reason for caution by some traders and here as well is that if the market is to get going soon the preliminary is that pot much will be doing [illegible] mid-July. Then explains the use of stop loss orders.

While there is no reason to believe that the technical position of stocks is weak, there is a faint suspicion that accumulation by important interests is not completed. If more buying remains to be done for big accounts it might be spread over a two-week period at least. Out and out investors of course need not worry, but trading accounts would hardly care for the patience-trying drift of dull, listless markets with their sparse opportunities for profits.

* * *

Newspaper advertising volume [illegible] running, paper production figures a close second as a reliable index of business and trade conditions. An accurate indication of business activity the volume of advertising in newspapers in May is cheering. Compilation of figures by Advertising Age show that May will record an increase of 10 per cent. In actual lineage newspaper advertising was up 12,296,900 Line. General advertising led in [illegible] automotive was a close second.

* * *

Briefs: For no particularly good reason the financial district is coming to look on the pending appointment of the Stock Exchange commission with less fear than heretofore . . . Perhaps it is a case of having a bad and using it . . . Since there is nothing to do about it even if one does not like it . . . Electrical & Musical Industries seems to have the inside track on television along with Marconi . . . With a whisper of the Rockefellers in the gossip

BONDHOLDERS ASK TIME

By Associated Press

New York, June 22—Bondholders of the Wickwire Spencer Steel Co. today filed a petition in federal District court for time to present a reorganization plan.

The company has its headquarters in New York City and plants in Worcester, Palmer and Clinton, Mass., and in Buffalo, N. Y.

Its petition sets forth assets of $26,853,57[illegible] and liabilities of $20,26[illegible].

The petition asked that receivers in equity be appointed for the company in 1927, and that on May, 1928, the Guaranty Trust Co. and Chase National Bank began foreclosure proceedings in Buffalo, N. Y., on bonds of an action which is still pending. It is alleged that since the receivers were appointed the value of the company's plant decreased $3,000,000.

Business Trend Is Toward Recovery

By Associated Press

New York, June 22—Business continues to show a trend toward recovery in spite of seasonal influences, Dun & Bradstreet said today in their weekly trade review.

The review asserted that the slow broadening process in evidence since the first of the year has removed the isolated peaks that outlined progress a year ago, but has left the general level higher than it was at that time.

"Early estimates of fall distribution," said the agency, "are running from 15 to 25 per cent above the 1933 figures, as the government seems determined to permit no relapse in trade movements, and the plans which are to be disclosed shortly may result in a more liberal upward revision of this percentage.

"Both from an industrial and commercial standpoint the reports received from all parts of the country this week depict the situation as continuing favorable, with only minor seasonal declines noticeable as yet.

"If anything the contrary prevails, and improvement would be more general, if it were not for labor difficulties, both actual and threatening in a number of districts."

Firm Regulation of Exchange Is Aim of President

By Universal Service

Washington, June 22—A "brain trust" group will control the new Federal stock exchange and security commission.

Administration officials have disclosed the President is determined to [illegible] regulation [illegible] and [illegible] excellent [illegible].

The other two posts will go to practical men [illegible] to the investment and brokerage business. The 3-2 division will assure firm regulation the President and his [illegible] assert.

Square-jawed James M. Landis, officials declared is certain to be appointed. Now an [illegible] Landis commission, Landis helped to write both the securities act and the stock market control measure.

Security Ferdinand Pecora Senate banking committee counsel, who conducted the Wall Street inquiry, [illegible] an appointment if he wants it. He may decide instead to direct the New York utilities investigation.

Senator Fletcher of Florida, banking committee chairman, is attempting to have Pecora placed on the commission for a one-year term at least.

He argues the [illegible] needs the benefit of Pecora's experience in ferreting out [illegible] of the country's security exchanges.

When he left for New England the President had a list of some 40 to 50 names from which he plans to select the commission's personnel. The appointments are expected to be announced Tuesday or Wednesday.

The third "brain trust" member may come from the Federal Trade Commission. The President is considering Commissioner George C. Matthews and Baldwin B. Blanchard, head of the commission's security division.

In reliable quarters it was said Matthews would prefer to stay in his present post. He is also a possible appointee for the Federal Communications Commission.

For the two "practical men" the President will draw from brokerage and investment banking circles.

Chief among those under consideration, a presidential adviser said, are Dean Witter, broker of San Francisco, and James Auchincloss, member of the New York Stock Exchange and an investment banker.

Baruch Will Quit Market to Write

New York, June 22 (AP)—Bernard M. Baruch, an advisor to the President, and long a figure of interest, said yesterday he soon would quit his Wall Street career in order to write.

"I don't want anyone to think I'm getting rusty and am going to retire," he said. "I'm going to be as active as I've always been. But it will be a different kind of activity."

Baruch was chairman of the Industries Board during the World War.

BUSINESS MUST ACCEPT RISKS TO UPHOLD U.S.

Country Will Forge Ahead in Spite of Washington

By B. C. FORBES

"The country will go ahead in spite of anything Washington may or may not do."

That sentiment is widely, but by no means universally, expressed.

B. C. Forbes

The plea made here to men of affairs to exert every effort to quicken recovery during the prospective long lull in eruptions at Washington has drawn sharp criticisms. In addition, of course, to endorsements. One reader, Charles A. Dar[illegible] boie, is "more than astonished" that any such suggestion should have been made in this column.

"Do you, for one minute," he asks, indignantly, "suppose that there is an employer, big or small, who would wish to cut off his nose to spoil his face? We want all the business we can get. But it is impossible, under American methods of mass production, to make contracts ahead if there is always the fear overhanging that, after you have entered into your contract, somehow, sometime, the cost is going to be increased by some unforeseen and inexcusable occurrence.

"Please remember you are not speaking to the galleries alone."

Admittedly, risks are inherent in launching ambitious business efforts at this time. Admittedly excuses a-plenty could be found for hugging the shore.

But suppose all business men were to exhibit timidity, nervousness, insistence upon crawling into their shells, what would happen to the United States?

Instead of progress, we would suffer retrogression. Instead of employment expansion, we would witness employment contraction. Instead of growth of confidence we would experience growth of pessimism.

How would Congress react to such a deplorable situation? It is a foregone conclusion that President Roosevelt and his legislators would feel impelled, not to say constrained, to institute further drastic innovations, further objectionable experiments, further un-American legislation and decrees.

Surely every thoughtful citizen should do everything within his power to avert such an eventuality.

Years and years ago I began to warn industry that unless it did much more to take care of its own, the politicians would inevitably get busy.

Similarly, I would most earnestly urge every employer in the land to go the limit in contributing to pushing the nation forward, because the only alternative would be repressive governmental activities at Washington.

If, for one, feel that the fewer additional un-American excursions embarked on at Washington, the better it will be for the future of the country.

STOCK PRICES ARE LOWER AT CLOSING

New York, June 22—Stocks were generally lower at the close of today's dealings on the New York Exchange with motor shares leading the decline. Losses ranged from fractions to around 2 points.

There were intermittent dips and rallies, but few of these flurries rippled the dull trading surface. The silver issues were hesitant in contrast to their strength of yesterday. There were scattered firm as well as soft spots in evidence.

Wheat rallied after early indecision, although corn and oats sagged. Cotton improved as the relief administration announced a purchasing program starting with about 250,000 bales. Silver and rubber were quiet. Prime investment bonds were slightly higher. Foreign exchanges did little.

Just how inflationary the government's silver-buying program will turn out to be was a matter of considerable argument in the financial district.

In some quarters it was held that "a sustained rise in the price of silver would have a world-wide favorable effect on the international wholesale price level which would be even more potent than the artificial raising of the gold price." It was not thought, however, that purchases around the present level of 45 cents an ounce would achieve the object sought by the administration.

Metal shares were advanced moderately in an otherwise listless first period. Trading was almost at a standstill. U. S. Smelting was better than a point higher. American Smelting and Howe Sound recorded fractional advances.

Bethlehem Steel was more than a point above its last closing price. U. S. Steel was steady around its previous closing price. Allied Chemical was a strong spot, advancing almost 2 points. Fourth National Investors was around a point higher.

Sales to 11 a. m. approximated 130,000 shares.

The tape continued to drag in the second hour. Price movements were narrow with few changes from earlier trends.

American Can showed a loss of more than a point. Ingersol Rand was down more than a point from last night's close. Union Bag & Paper was off slightly more than a point. Pullman eased a major fraction.

Sales to noon approximated 230,000 shares.

Leading shares turned downward in the third hour with trading showing a slight pickup on the downswing, only to again quiet down near the end of the period as the selling subsided. Hudson Motors was down more than 2 points. General Realty dropped 2 points. Spiegel May Stern was down 2 points. U. S. Steel eased fractionally.

Losses of a point or more appeared in such issues as Allied Chemical, American Can, American Locomotive, American Telephone, Celanese, Liggett & Myers B and Johns Manville. Woolworth and General Motors were down fractionally. Penney dropped around 2 points.

Sales to 1 p. m. approximated 430,000 shares.

In the fourth hour some of the motors turned heavy, Hudson dropping around 2 points to a new low for the year. The Hudson relapse was attributed to the liquidation of a tired long account.

Others, down fractionally to around a point, included American Telephone, U. S. Steel, Westinghouse, U. S. Smelting, Cerro de Pasco, Chrysler, General Motors, Western Union, Santa Fe, Union Pacific, N. Y. Central, American Beet Sugar preferred, Standard Oil of New Jersey and Sears Roebuck. The utilities were narrow and many stocks were about unchanged.

Sales to 2 p. m. approximated 490,000 shares.

Business Seeking More Power in Washington

By Associated Press

Washington, June 22—Various attempts by business men to gain more influence in Washington are being centered in the efforts of the executives constituting NRA's industrial advisory board to create a permanent, industry-paid staff in NRA.

There have already been comments published that this plan has a Fascistic tinge, but representative leaders, while declining to recognize this statement publicly, say privately they are trying to do what the recovery act asks—to govern themselves.

One conceded frankly that business sought more power, and simply commented, "What of it?" His view was that all partisans were seeking power, and that it was in the public interest they should do so. He and others contended there was no reason to assume such a search for power was unsocial.

The intention of the executives is to make the permanent board as representative of industry as possible, and to have it advised continually by a less permanent board of prominent men. The salaries of the permanent representatives will be comparatively small, and its members will be expected to make some financial sacrifice in accepting the jobs.

The method of collecting the pay from industry has not been decided. It could be done through code authorities, or even through special contributions of companies which wished to facilitate the plan.

The entire plan ties in with the organization of the business advisory and planning council, from which the NRA advisory board has been drawn and which was created by Secretary Roper to acquaint business men with government problems first hand and to get their advice. The council also hopes to make itself more effective.

NEW 45 MINUTE RADIO VARIETY PROGRAM HIGHLIGHT

Spotlight Revue Broadcast Tonight

By N. F. T.

An array of air talent likely to attract attention tonight (WNAC is that which comprises the new Spotlight Revue" program, due down the loudspeaker from 10 until 10:45 p. m. Frank Crumit carries the master of ceremony sign. Stoopnagle and Bud bestow their characteristic buffoonery against a background of Victor Young orchestra offerings. Then, too, there's some classic Evelyn MacGill soloing thrown in for good "mike" measure, or perhaps to tone up the assorted proceedings.

Another reinstatement of network wonderment is the one that places the popular Round Towners Quartet in a 6 to 6:45 setting (WAAB) for the summer.

CONCERT CONTRALTO

Doris Doe joins the Weekly NBC String Symphony period (WBZ) under Frank Black direction this evening at the latter's regular offering. Miss Doe has become well known for roles in numerous Wagnerian operas and a host of native numbers. Tonight she the contralto chooses an aria from Verdi's "Don Carlos" for her opening selection.

An unusual variety of musical bits is waiting when the "Unique Prostate" pushes over through WEEI facilities this evening come 9:30 and lasting through until 10 p. m. Mention is also pleasingly made that no more than three minutes of the entire half-hour is to be consumed by commercialism. Verily, this colyum recommends any such variety show, assuming the balance of the broadcast will measure up, of course.

You Hear Him on the Radio

HARRY EINSTEIN

Harry Einstein . . . Whom you knew better as "Nick Parkyakas" . . . And who is reputed the original "Greek Gentleman" . . . Starting back in 1921 and '22 . . . At old Station WGI . . . Which you may remember at Medford Hillside . . . When a comedian on the air was rare.

The dialect man . . . Who has been even better on the chain than people . . . Is an advertising counsel and writer . . . For a big Boston furniture concern . . . And is a business man first . . . And an entertainer later . . . And he would never . . . So he says . . . Give up his business career for professional entertaining.

Born in 1904 . . . Einstein is one of three brothers . . . With a sister also in the family . . . And he attended Abraham Lincoln School . . . And then English High . . . Doing comedy character work in school and club theatricals.

His success locally . . . Brought five urgent calls to the network . . . To support Eddie Cantor . . . And Einstein made a nation-wide hit.

Writes all his own comedy material . . . And now is writing a book . . . On dialects . . . To be titled, "English As She Is Spoke" . . . But he never listens to other comedians on the air . . . Partly because he does not wish to retain something of theirs . . . Which he might trespass unconsciously.

Stands five feet, eleven inches tall . . . Weighs 200 pounds . . . To the ounce . . . Has curly brown hair . . . And the same color eyes . . . Is single . . . Living in Brookline with his widowed mother.

Doesn't like to listen to radio . . . But like sto read . . . Watch policemen snarl up traffic . . . Wear brown clothes . . . Smoke cigars . . . Watch the hossies gallop . . . See football and baseball games . . . And dislikes breakfast, bridge, poker, golf and polo.

Tomorrow's Radio Personality Portrait will be that of Peters Langford, the Florida Nightingale.

KILLING PUZZLE IN PROVIDENCE

By International News Service

Providence, R. I., June 22—Police today were confronted with what they thought to be a murder mystery when the body of Mrs. Anna McGaney, 40, was found lying in the roadway on Douglas pike. Three boys found the body and notified state police. The body was warm when discovered.

Authorities were working on the theory that the woman was thrown from an automobile. The body was badly bruised. Mrs. McGahey is estranged from her husband, according to police, and was living with a 19-year-old son.

Late last night, she visited a neighbor, and appeared to be upset. She did not tell the neighbors what was troubling her. She left a few minutes later and that was the last seen of her alive.

Middletown, O., June 22—Sidney B. Rectanus, 46, former vice-president of the American Rolling Mills Company, today beat and shot and killed his wife Alma, 42, shot and wounded two other members of his family, and then killed himself.

The wounded are his mother-in-law Mrs. Elena Rothman, 76, shot in the neck, condition said to be serious, and a daughter, Shirley Ann, 12, wounded in the left side.

A daughter Jane, 18, and a son, Daniel, 16, said they were struck by their father as he fled to the garden of their home when police reached the scene.

Shirley, despite her wounds, was making her way to the garden of their home when police reached the scene.

Are Old Ways Best in Schools of Today?

LAST September Newton's up-to-the-minute school authorities introduced an innovation that must have seemed radical to a rod-wielding, three R-teaching schoolma'am of an elder day.

They abrogated the customary grade marks and report cards.

Such an old-fashioned system did not indicate a pupil's true progress, they said. Most Newton parents applauded the move and congratulated themselves on having schools so advanced.

The other night a group of these same parents were given a hearing by the school board. They had signed a petition asking that the new method be discontinued. After a year of experiment they were satisfied, they said, that the old way was the better way.

They had been promised a letter twice a year—ofteners, if necessary—indicating their children's progress. Often, however, the letters, informing them that a child's work was not good enough to warrant promotion, did not come until two or three weeks before the end of a term. Then it was too late to do anything about it.

The new system, they also argued, stifled ambition in their children. It deadened the will to excel. It removed the spirit of competition from the class room.

A layman, however, cannot but feel that it may be unfortunate if Newton turns back. Grades are going by the boards in colleges as well as grammar schools. The University of Chicago has already successfully abolished the old marks system. This spring Harvard voted to do away with its "hourlies."

Furthermore, one wonders whether competition is the proper spur for school children. Should Johnny learn to spell or to multiply because he wants to get a better mark than Billy?

Or should he become so interested in his studies that he will pursue them for their own sake? That is the THIRST for knowledge. It brings lasting results.

Perhaps the whole Newton problem could be solved if the semi-annual letters were sent out sooner.

The question is one for experts—and they are divided. Even if they decide in favor of the old system, Newton is to be congratulated on trying the new. It is by trial and error that the world progresses.

Effects of High Taxes

City after city, and town after town, announce higher tax rates. It sometimes happens that those who do not have to pay taxes, or those who do not have to pay more than comparatively small amounts do not appreciate what high taxes really mean.

Others realize, sadly, that high taxes actually confiscate property, depriving them of their homes. The Home Owners Loan Corporation cannot help all of the hundreds who apply to it daily right here in Boston. It is restricted by the laws.

High taxes confiscate, also, jobs and savings. They cause some factories to close, or to curtail. They block industrial expansion.

High taxes stand in the way of investment of capital that would otherwise further industrial expansion and add to employment, opportunities and purchasing power.

High taxes are a hurdle in the path of recovery.

They point to the crying need for better State, town and city management.

Our Druggists' Plight

The puzzling question as to why many drug stores generally specialize in everything but drugs has been answered by Robert P. Fishelis, president of the American Pharmaceutical Association.

Addressing the Swampscott convention of the Massachusetts branch, Mr. Fishelis declared that the nation's 60,000 druggists split an annual business of 165,000,000 prescriptions.

With the unit price estimated at eighty-five cents, the average druggist is able to figure on a daily income of only six dollars and eighty cents from this source. Hardly enough to maintain the modern drug store!

It appears, then, that until the health of the American people takes a decided turn for the worse, the corner druggist must continue to devote much of his attention to the soda fountain—and the cosmetic counter.

Work for Boston Yard

Assurance comes from Congressman John J. Douglass of East Boston that at least two more destroyers will be built at the Boston Navy Yard, with work presumably starting in the rather near future. This will assure continuance of employment to many workers.

Decision of naval authorities to give the new work to our navy yard may have been partly due to satisfaction over the good service performed there in past months.

If the destroyers cost in line with what Uncle Sam pays for the Farragut, Fore River-built, which joined the fighting fleet here a few days ago, the Douglass message means about $8,000,000 more is to be spent in Boston.

Swimming for Degree

Herbert Bruckner of Hinsdale, a Williams College senior nearly failed to win his bachelor of arts degree, because, it was thought, he was unable to swim.

To old-fashioned folk, this "swimming to a degree" came as somewhat of a surprise.

Swimming, however, is certainly as useful as a number of other accomplishments taught in colleges.

Swimming, for one thing, is one of the best known physical exercise aids to good health.

Orthodox professors, who may be inclined to scoff at "swimming to a diploma," may recall the Latin maxim, "A healthy mind goes with a healthy body."

40 Years in Pulpit

Rev. Dr. J. Whitcomb Brougher, pastor of Tremont Temple, was honored by clergymen of Greater Boston on the 40th anniversary of his ordination to the ministry.

Since coming here four years ago from California, Dr. Brougher by his labors has won a high place in the estimation of people of Boston. The Boston Evening American adds its best wishes to the felicitations for Dr. Brougher.

Real Glutton for Work -:- By T. E. Power

Listen, World! -:- By Elsie Robinson

Nervous Breakdown?

Do you feel like ending it all? Have you lost your job? Has your girl turned you down? Afraid of the future—jittery generally?

And of course you think your case is unique.

What's the big idea—come-on talk for a patent medicine slinger? No. These are serious questions about what may aid you, and what certainly does all an increasing number of decent but desperate people. And you'll find them facing you on the cover of a book you need to buy:

Elsie Robinson

"Nervous Breakdown . . . Its Cause and Cure," by W. Horan Wolfe, M. D. (Farrar & Rinehart, Publishers).

"Nervous Breakdown". That used to be one of our American jokes. Like Big Feet, Mothers-in-law and Saturday Night Baths.

People had it, but no one ever took them seriously. "Just an old lady's disease—all imaginary."

But nervous breakdown isn't a joke any longer. Nor is it an old lady's disease. It is rapidly becoming a national menace. And, though scientists admit that it is largely rooted in the imagination, we no longer think that sick imaginations are baby stuff, to be shushed off with a scolding, or bought off with toys.

What makes people break down nervously? Why do quiet, controlled, kindly, seemingly healthy, people suddenly "go all to pieces"—become frantic, terrified, fiendishly cruel, so sick they must go to bed, where they alternately weep and storm?

Because they actually have "gone to pieces." Something in their lives — something upon which all their outward conduct and their inner dreams was based—has exploded. They are as truly shattered as though their bodies had been blown to bits by dynamite. "Nervous breakdown" is the evidence of that explosion.

What keeps human beings happy and healthy?

A FEELING OF SUCCESS . . . A FEELING OF PROGRESS.

Every person must have certain things or he cannot live. He must have food, water, air, rest. These are his animal necessities. But he has certain human needs which are just as vital. He must have a balanced program of work and play . . . something to love . . . something to worship . . . a sense of safety . . . and a sense of success.

STARVED PRIDE WILL WRECK A MAN AS SURELY AS A STARVED STOMACH.

So, in planning our lives, there must be a place for all those things. There must be adventures and rewards, or we cannot find happiness and health. But, unfortunately, few of us know how to plan our lives. Often we mess things up through our own stupidity or greediness. Often others meddle — force us into a false position.

And lately our whole social organization has become such a monstrous muddle that millions, who could have managed to make good in a more orderly, leisured world, are cracking up under the strain.

Why are our jails and asylums crowded as never before with rebels and misfits? That's why. The pretty young wife in a hysterical tantrum — the vicious fiend murderer on his way to the gallows—they are both the victims of unbalanced lives—lives that didn't get what they needed and raised a riot in compensation.

"For no human being can bear to remain inferior." If we can't achieve a sense of power in a healthy way, we'll do it in an unhealthy way.

WHAT'S NERVOUS BREAKDOWN? NERVOUS BREAKDOWN IS THE REVOLT OF A SICK SPIRIT . . . A SICK SPIRIT TRYING TO "GET ITS OWN WAY" . . . TRYING TO ATTAIN THAT SENSE OF SUCCESS OR SAFETY WHICH IT HAS LOST OR NEVER ACHIEVED.

Why are people self-conscious? Super-sensitive? Why do they have "martyr complexes"? Persecution "complexes"? Why do some people take a malicious delight in inventing and peddling lying gossip? Why do some turn against those they love best? Or become so "devoted" that they can't let their loved ones out of their sight? Why do they develop strange ailments and perversions?

Some one of these questions—perhaps all—hits YOU, or someone you know. And you'll find the answer in Dr. Wolfe's book. You need that book. All America needs it. It isn't merely a doctor's treatise on sick nerves. IT'S A ROAD MAP THROUGH THE MUDDLE OF MODERN LIFE—WITH A SIGN-POST FOR EVERY BAD CURVE AND DANGEROUS DETOUR.

In a Beauty Parlor -:- -:- By Winifred Black

The Wind in the Willows—Why I haven't seen it for years, no, not for years.

And the other day while I was waiting for a friend to get her hair "set" —there it was lying on the table in the beauty parlor, right where someone had left it.

I picked it up and all at once the beauty parlor was gone and the smell of the hair tonic and the whiff of the beauty powder was gone, too.

The noise and the clamor of the city street outside the window, the tired men and women, the poor dressed up little manikins of imitation children —the taxi cabs, the policemen on the corner—gone, all gone, like figures in a half forgotten dream.

Winfred Black

And I was down on the river bank with Mother and the friends and the river sparkled and gurgled in the sun and the grass was green and the tall trees threw their shade upon the ground and all the happy little animals went scurrying about their business.

Yes, here he was again, Mr. Toad with his vanity, and his brand new car and oh, how he loved to sound the horn.

Why, I'd forgotten all about it, all these years and I've had hours that were lonely and blue, too, when I could have gone gaily out into the great world with Mr. Toad and laughed until my heart fairly ached with joy.

If I had a dozen children I would give every one of them "The Wind in the Willows" to read.

How seldom we find a book that has in it any real joy of living.

Take that chapter where the little Waits came to sing the Christmas carols to Moley and he in his dark little house under the ground.

Why you could smell the flitches of bacon and the great brown hams smoking in the chimney—when I read about that ham I called up the one in authority and demanded baked ham for dinner with plenty of cloves, mind you, and well basted and plain boiled potatoes and green spinach for company.

And then I went and found a faded old book of old music and hunted up an ancient carol or so, and strummed away on the unpriced piano, and before I knew what was happening I was young and gay and full of restful life and the whole world was just a gorgeous, glorious, uproarous outing and drinking, rowing and sailing, walking and driving affair, and it was a pleasure even to breathe.

How we have lost the tang of it in our modern books—the love of life and the zest of living.

So many people are bored, so many people are beating their brains out trying to puzzle out answers to all kinds of confusing questions.

So many people are cynical and sarcastic—what a joy it is to find a book that goes back to the good old solid first principles.

What of all the gifts would you choose for yours at your birth if you could make the choice?

Beauty, wit, brains, money. I think, the glorious gift of a light heart and the power of the charm, health?—I would choose, plain, simple easy joys of life.

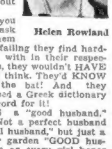
Marry-Go-Round

By Helen Rowland

When you ask a happily married pair what charm or virtue it is that they love or admire most in each other, it is funny to see the look of blank bewilderment which comes into their eyes.

They don't KNOW. They haven't stopped to think. It is this thoughtfulness, this generosity, his mighty masculine intellect? Is it her understanding, her sweet temper, her sense of humor? They are utterly vague and uncertain about it.



Helen Rowland

But if you should ask either of them what little failing they find hardest to bear with in their respective spouses, they wouldn't HAVE to stop and think. They'd KNOW right off the bat! And they wouldn't need a Greek dictionary to find a word for it!

What IS a "good husband," anyhow. Not a perfect husband or an "ideal husband," but just a common or garden GOOD husband," such as every girl hopes to draw in the matrimonial sweepstakes.

Somebody is always giving a new formula for selecting a husband, a new system for picking out a wife or a new recips for making a go of marriage.

But a husband is like a cocktail, a mixture of so many ingredients that the only thing about him, of which you can be absolutely sure, is that you LIKE him—or that you DON'T.

Oddly enough, a good husband isn't always a good man. And many a "good man," who obeys the law, observes all the Ten Commandments, pays his debts and keeps his wedding vows may be the most trying and insufferable of husbands.

As open-handed racketeer, a pleasant-tempered kidnaper or even a nice, genial bank robber may be a "good husband" (as so many of their gun-moll wives have testified) while the most upright and virtuous man in your community may be just a matrimonial headache.

Carrying a gun in one pocket doesn't prevent a thoughtful man from remembering to bring the Little Woman a diamond bracelet or a couple of alligator pears in the other pocket.

Nobody can tell any woman just what combination of qualities will make a good husband—for HER.

Because the whole success of a marriage depends on the TEAM-WORK! And unless a man and a woman are gaited to do team-work — unless each understands where the other is heading and can keep the same pace, any marriage is hard pulling.

Human Side of the News; Resting on Laurels

By Edwin C. Hill

It was Weatherman James H. Scarr who told us away back last September that the winter of 1933-34 was going to be a swinger.

But the good doctor, perched high aloft near the roof of the Whitehall building at the tip end of Manhattan, won't take a chance on guessing about the summer. Not a word says he as to whether it will be an extremely hot summer or an unusually mild one.

He took a chance on last winter—oh, yes, weathermen scientists though they be, have to take a chance now and then, and Dr. Scarr, knowing from the facts and figures that the six winters preceding 1933-34 had been rather mild, figured that the law of averages was about to get to work and that the oncoming winter would be a tough one.

But he hasn't any such data to go on regarding predicting the character of the coming summer, and therefore leaves us up in the air.

"But why fuss about it?" asked Dr. Scarr. "If we can't have the weather we like, then we should like the weather we have."

NO BASIS FOUND

He tells this writer also that long distance weather predictions are no good, that the science of meteorology hasn't yet got around to guessing ahead, with reasonable confidence, more than a very few days at a time.

Some day, when we learn more about cosmic rays and sun spots and suchlike phenomena, maybe the weather sharks will be able to tell us what the weather will be three months ahead, and a mighty useful thing to know it would be for many trades.

This writer has known Dr. Scarr a good many years and written pages about him and his life, a most interesting life, it has been. He's a whacking big chap, standing six feet or a bit more and weighing two hundred pounds on the hoof. He had gray, unruly hair which stands up all over his scientific dome, and his blue eyes twinkle with quiet humor when he talks to you.

Dr. Scarr is sixty-five, a Michigan and Kansas farm boy who earned a law degree and then turned his broad back on Blackstone to go into the weather business in a big way.

A curious sidelight on Dr. Scarr's job is that he is called into the courts at least three hundred and fifty times a year to testify in civil and criminal cases.

In criminal cases, the state of the weather at the time the crime was committed is tremendously important.

Abraham Lincoln, as a young lawyer out in Illinois, saved a client from the gallows by proving that a witness for the State lied when he said the moon was shining when he saw the client commit the crime.

IS ROMANTIC CHAP

In the same way, Dr. Jim Scarr has gone into court and saved men from death and others from prison—and also helped to send to the penitentiary just those some men who were trying to beat the law.

He is a romantic chap, Dr. Jim, with a rich vein of sentiment deep down in his cosmics. One day a shy feminine voice called him on the telephone and said:

"Dr. Scarr, will you please tell me what the weather will be on the seventeenth of June?"

He said: "Is is a wedding?"

"Yes," she replied. "How did you know?" He didn't know. She persisted: "Well, what will it be, Dr. Scarr?"

He replied: "My dear, if that is to be your wedding day, it will be the brightest and most beautiful day in that wonderful month of roses, June."

And came back over the wire: "Thank you so much, Dr. Scarr."

He counted the calendar days and found that it was 117 days to the seventeenth of June.

"Whatever the weather would be on that day," said Dr. Scarr, telling the story, "I was sure that the young lady had 116 bright days waiting. We should always live in tomorrow—we don't live in yesterday—we don't live in today, we are too busy doing things, but we do live in tomorrow. I would suggest that you always expect tomorrow today, then you are sure to be happy—tomorrow may be too late."

The most celebrated piece of testimony Dr. Scarr ever gave in court might be the snapper of a cracking good detective story. A man was being tried for murder. His lawyer set up what seemed to be an impregnable alibi.

He offered in evidence a photograph of the accused man which had been taken at the same hour the murder was committed, but hundreds of miles distant from the spot.

Then the state quietly put Dr. Scarr on the witness chair. He showed clearly and conclusively that a hard rain was falling when the murder was done, but that the picture had been made in clear sunlight, and that the shadows in the picture proved absolutely that it had been made hours after the killing.

General Foulois Expected to Give Stiff Battle

By James T. Williams, Jr.

President Roosevelt is expected to reject the demand of a subcommittee of the House committee on military affairs that the Secretary of War immediately remove from office Major General Benjamin D. Foulois, chief of air corps, United States army.

To accede to this demand would be to deprive General Foulois of that day in court which is the birthright of the humblest man, woman or child under the flag.

CHARGES GO TO DERN

That would leave General Foulois that assumption of innocence, until he is proven guilty by due process of law, to which every American who looks to the flag for protection is entitled to receive under the government established by the federal Constitution.

The procedure in the case of General Foulois will probably be on this wise:

The sensational charges that he has been guilty of a series of serious offences ranging from "gross misconduct" to downright "dishonesty," which were made in a special report to Congress by a subcommittee of the House committee on military affairs, will in due course be referred by Secretary Dern to General Foulois for comment.

Those of his comrades with the colors who know him best say that the same courage and perseverance which brought him the high honor of flying with the Wright brothers, who were the first of all the children of men to fly, and took him from a private in the ranks to the grade of major general, which he now holds as chief of the air corps, will not fall him under the fire of any enemy, foreign or domestic.

COURT OF GENERALS

Instead of "quitting under fire," General Foulois is expected to assert his rights under the law and request a court of inquiry. This request the Secretary of War will doubtless promptly grant. This court of inquiry will give to General Foulois that chance to be heard in his own defense, to face his accusers, to summon witnesses in his own behalf, which Postmaster General Farley denied to the holders of all domestic airmail contracts, and Attorney General Cummings denied to Henry W. Mellon when he pilloried him before the country before the former Secretary of the Treasury had the chance to defend himself before the Federal grand jury that cleared him.

The court of inquiry before which General Foulois will be given a chance to defend himself against the attack of a Congressional sub-committee must consist of three or more major generals of the army who are senior to him in rank.

Among the major generals eligible for service on such a court are:

Major General Fox Conner of Boston, commanding the First Corps Area; Major General Hugh A. Drum of New York, commanding the Second Corps Area; Major General Preston Brown of Chicago, commanding the Sixth Corps Area; Major General Frank R. McCoy at Omaha, commanding the Seventh Corps Area. Major General Malin Craig at San Francisco, commanding the Ninth Corps Area; Major General John J. Pershing at Washington, commanding the Eighth Corps Area; Major General George V. Richardson, commanding the Fourth Corps Area; Major General George S. Simonds, president of the Army War College, and Major General Halstead Dorey, commanding the Second Division with headquarters at San Antonio.

CHALLENGE FACES COURT

As the defendant in what is destined to become one of the celebrated courts of inquiry in all American military history, General Foulois will have the right to challenge the assignment to the court of an officer whom he believes for any reason to be ineligible. He can also summon witnesses from both the Senate and House of Representatives, as well as from the army and civil life.

It is one of the fact that many of these witnesses are within easy reach of the national capital, that probability is that the federal city will be the scene of these extraordinary proceedings. And the findings of this tribunal may turn the searchlight of truth not only on some things that have never been told of behind closed doors in the House committees on military affairs but also on some things that happened in the postoffice department on that fatal day last February when the order of events issued which sent to an unnecessary death 22 of the bravest pilots that ever flew the colors of a great nation.
